FAKE LOTTERY TICKETS FLOOD DISTRICT AREA

Slips for Agua Caliente Sweepstakes Prove to Be Bogus.

HUNDREDS VICTIMS OF RACING SWINDLE

POLICE ARE UNABLE TO TRACE SALESMEN

Strict Laws Against Sale or Purchase Prevent Complaints.

Probably thousands of Washingtonians who like to take a sporting chance today are wondering whether they have been victimized in the drawing of the Agua Caliente Sweepstakes, the first of which was held last Sunday.

It seems that a flood of counterfeit tickets were unloaded on Washington, judging by the number of persons who have been notified by Agua Caliente Club officials that their coupons are counterfeits.

Were Well Distributed.

For more than two months the tickets were sold at $2.00 each, but in such an undercover manner that while police knew of their being distributed they were never able to make an arrest of one of the numerous sellers.

Even now the police are undetermined as to whether they could make a case against either a seller or a purchaser for the reason that while the ticket is strictly a lottery it contains the information that the holder is entitled to admission to the Agua Caliente race track on March 23, the day set for the final drawing.

Few Make Complaints.

Inasmuch as the selling or purchasing of lottery tickets in the District of Columbia is punishable by fine and imprisonment, holders of the fake tickets have been reluctant to make any complaints to the police. Of still more import the original source of the counterfeit coupons seems to be enshrouded in mystery, as the tickets passed through several hands before finally reaching the purchaser.

Manila Fire Drives 5,000 From Homes

One Killed and Scores Are Injured as Flames Burn 1,000 Houses.

Manila, March 14 (Friday) (A.P.).—Flames roared over the Singalong district of Manila last night and early today, destroying the flimsy homes of 5,000 Filipino and Chinese laborers.

One person is known to have been killed and scores were injured.

Several children were missing hours after the flames had died to embers. One thousand Nipa houses of woven grass blazed like paper, only sheet iron roofs remaining to mark their location. The Philippine police, helpless to halt the flames, searched the smoking ruins for the missing children and casualties. On the edge of the burned area the Red Cross erected a tent city and ministered to sufferers. From across the Pasig River, where the more prosperous of Manila's residents live, there came crowds to aid or merely look on.

Guards were thrown about to prevent looting as the Filipino and Chinese laborers struggled to save their meager possessions. It was the second time within a little more than two years that the Singalong district had been devastated by fire. In December, 1927, two persons perished and 2,000 lost their homes.

Real Estate Man Kidnaped by Gang

Wealthy Operator of New York Slugged and Then Abducted.

Asbury Park, N. J., March 13 (A.P.).—Samuel Barron, wealthy New York real estate operator, was slugged and kidnaped almost in front of his home in Interlaken last night, police revealed tonight. Persons living nearby heard him shouting for help and ran out to see him being beaten by three unmasked men and then pushed into a car driven by a fourth.

New York, March 13 (A.P.).—Herman Goodstein, an associate of Samuel Barron, New York real estate man who was kidnaped in Interlaken, N. J., last night, said tonight that no demands for ransom had been made by Barron's captors.

Ezra Gould Marries His First Wife Again

Capital Banker Recently Separated From Second Spouse.

EZRA GOULD.

Divorced from mih second wife three weeks ago, Ezra Gould, president of the Washington Mechanics Saving Bank, yesterday remarried his first wife, Marjorie H. Gould, at Bethesda, Md., and they are happily reunited at Mr. Gould's home in Edgemoor, Md.

Securing a license at Rockville, Md., yesterday afternoon, the groom gave his age as 52, and the bride's age as 42 and her address as Newport, R. I. They were married at 7 o'clock last night in the Presbyterian Church at Bethesda by the Rev. Stanley White.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Gould returned to Edgemoor where a dinner was served to a small party of close friends.

Mrs. Gould was formerly Marjorie Hobbs, daughter of Rear Admiral Ichabod Goodwin Hobbs, of Newport, R. I., who retired on March 13, 1905. Her mother was Helen M. Hazard, of Newport.

Following his divorce from the first Mrs. Gould in 1925, Mr. Gould married Miss Eleanor Manning, of this city. Their separation came about three weeks ago when a dvlorce decree was granted.

Only a few intimate friends were in on the secret when Mr. Gould and his first wife made plans to renew their union and the announcement of their second wedding last night came as a surprise to a host of business and social acquaintances.

Mr. Gould is prominent in business circles of the city, having held his position as head of the Mechanics Bank for a number of years and being interested in other institutions in the Capital.

REDISCOUNT RATE CUT IN NEW YORK

LONDON LEAD FOLLOWED

New York, March 13 (A.P.).—The New York Federal Reserve Bank today administered what Wall street regarded as a tonic to business with a reduction in its rediscount rate from 4 to 3½ per cent. This is the lowest rate since the latter part of 1927 and early 1928, when the Federal Reserve acted similarly to speed up business activity.

The 3½ per cent rate completes a two-year cycle in which the rediscount rate rose from that level to 6 per cent as the supply of credit was drained low by the demands of a rampant "bull" market.

The reductions in the Federal Reserve Bank rate have been accompanied by cutting of the Bank of England rate and reductions of the rates of most other foreign central banks Changes in the Bank of England rate are normally announced Thursday morning, and the New York Reserve Bank changes Thursday afternoon. The Bank of England announced a reduction of one-half of 1 per cent in its rate last week, and that a like move was not immediately made by the Reserve Bank caused Wall street much surprise.

Not all bankers and economists have agreed that a lower Federal Reserve rate will serve as an immediate stimulant to business. Governor Norris, of the Philadelphia Reserve Bank, recently stated that there was a wide feeling in reserve circles that such action would not be effective or desirable at this time.

Most observations from banking and business authorities, however, have emphatically favored a lower rediscount rate. President Hoover's stabilization program has placed much emphasis on the prospects of a revival in the building industry. It has been hoped that a revival of activity in building and construction would take up the slack in employment caused by the lower rate of operations in many manufacturing lines.

The rediscount rate is the rate charged by the Federal Reserve to its member banks for taking over notes and other instruments of credit received by the member banks in connection with making advances to their customers. A lower rediscount rate, therefore, should in a natural course of events be reflected in cheaper bank credit.

MRS. TAFT'S SISTER DIES ON PARIS VISIT

Mrs. Charles Anderson Is Fatally Stricken by Heart Attack.

WELL KNOWN IN CAPITAL.

Mrs. Charles Anderson, of Cincinnati, Ohio, sister of Mrs. William Howard Taft, widow of the late Chief Justice, died suddenly yesterday of a heart attack in Paris, France, according to a cablegram received last night at the Taft home on Wyoming avenue.

Mrs. Anderson, accompanied by a daughter, Miss Catherine Anderson, left the United States recently for England, where they had been visiting Mrs. Anderson's other daughter, Mrs. George Lester, at her home near London. The two were said to have left there Wednesday for Paris, and shortly after arriving Mrs. Anderson suffered the attack. She died within five hours.

At the Taft residence plans for the funeral were declared to be lacking, although word was expected today.

In addition to Mrs. Taft, Mrs. Anderson is survived by five other sisters, including Miss Maria Herron, of Cincinnati, who is at the Taft home; Mrs. Henry Lippitt, of Providence, R. I., wife of former Senator Lippitt; Mrs. Gustavus Parsons, of Columbus, Ohio, and Mrs. Louis T. More, of Cincinnati.

Mrs. Anderson has made numerous visits to Washington and was widely known in social circles here. Her husband died many years ago. She was about 55 years old.

Atlantic City Head Faces 14 Charges

Atlantic City, N. J., March 13 (A.P.). Mayor Anthony M. Ruffu, jr., was arrested late today on a bench warrant issued by Judge William H. Smathers on fourteen indictments charging violations of the penal code.

He was held under $28,000 bail for his appearance before Judge Smathers tomorrow morning.

John Conway, city building supervisor, was indicted and arrested earlier today.

Capital Blackhander Robs And Beats Shop Proprietor

Man Is "Taken for Ride" When Death Letters Fail to Intimidate Him.

FRANK SACHS.

Blackhand letters with threats of death which have caused Frank Sachs, proprietor of an auto repair shop at 609 K street northwest, to live a "living death" for the last few weeks, was climaxed yesterday when he was "taken for a ride" at gun point on the Defense highway, beaten and robbed and told to give up his business.

Sachs' experience began two weeks ago when he installed an automobile glass repair department in his shop. A few days later he received a letter telling him that he would be "bumped off" unless he eliminated the new department.

The blackhand note, which was scrawled on plain paper, was not

STAGG LAUDS DRY LAWS AT HOUSE INQUIRY

Chicago Coach Believes Prohibition Will Survive Attack.

MRS. PEABODY HELD WITNESS MEDDLER

Argument on "Insult" Leads to Abrupt Adjournment.

STATE CONTROL HIT BY CHARLES M. HAY

(Associated Press.)

Five men, including Alonzo Stagg, veteran athletic director of the University of Chicago, stood yesterday before the House judiciary committee to add another mass of testimony in opposition to any modification or repeal of the Nation's prohibition laws.

Representative La Guardia (Republican), New York, a wet, told the veteran coach that his was the "most sincere, most telling statement" he had ever heard from a dry.

The hearings yesterday were in sharp contrast to the smooth-clicking, machine-like performance of Wednesday, when Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, of Beverly, Mass., led two dozen women witnesses before the committee without having any subjected to a single question from the members until all were through.

Argument Ends on Adjournment.

Mrs. Peabody and two of her witnesses who were to have been cross-examined yesterday morning failed to appear. She alone came in later in the day and precipitated an argument among the members which ended in a sudden adjournment.

A statement from Irving Fisher, professor of economics at Yale, which the drys hoped to have read, was ruled out by Chairman Graham, who held that Fisher as an outstanding dry should give his views in person and subject himself to questioning.

Cross-examination of two other witnesses, Carlton M. Sherwood, executive secretary of the citizens' committee of one thousand of New York, and Charles M. Hay, St. Louis attorney, was halted several times by committee arguments.

Today a short morning session is to be held, but at the conclusion of yesterday's hearing the dry generals were uncertain who would be presented. Their program was disarranged by the ruling out of the Fisher statement.

Stagg Lauds Prohibition.

Another prepared statement, by Dr Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was

LABOR UPHELD BY FAILURE OF CENSURE VOTE

GOVERNMENT WINS BY MAJORITY OF 73

SCORE OF LIBERALS SUPPORTS PREMIER

Churchill Accuses Snowden of "Aggravating" Evils of Unemployment.

London, March 13 (A.P.).—The Labor government tonight beat off a Conservative attack in the House of Commons, defeating a motion of censure brought by former Premier Baldwin, Conservative leader, with a margin of more than 70 votes to spare.

The figures were 308 to 235 in the division.

After six hours of debate, in which Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer, led the Tory attack, about a score of Liberals filed into the government lobbies and voted with Labor. The Labor strength of 287 votes, however, would have been sufficient alone to defeat the Tories, the figures indicating many abstentions among both opposition parties.

Motion Doomed From Start.

Mr. Baldwin's motion to censure the government for its refusal to extend safeguarding duties as a means for reducing unemployment and protecting British industries had from the beginning little chance of success. It was not drawn up in such a way as to attract support from the Liberals, who are as much at odds with the Conservatives on the question of protection as the Laborites are.

Mr. Baldwin himself admitted that the government would probably win. The victory became certain when Sir Herbert Samuel, one of the Liberal leaders and chairman of the party organization since 1927, rose and pledged "the unhesitating support of the Liberals to the government today in resisting the motion of censure." The active Liberal support was not quite so "unhesitating" as Sir Herbert predicted, but it was enough, and taken with the absences among the Conservatives it was overwhelming.

The government's victory had been expected in all quarters of the House as well as in naval conference circles.

Churchill Raps Snowden.

Scientists' Cameras Locate Ninth Planet

Prediction Made Years Ago Confirmed as Astronomers Announce New Member of Celestial Family; Capital Issues "Welcome."

Flagstaff, Ariz., March 13 (A.P.).—In that little cluster of orbs which scampers across the sidereal abyss under the name of the solar system there are, be it known, nine instead of a mere eight worlds.

The presence of a ninth marcher in the retinue of the sun, long suspected, was definitely announced here by Dr. V. M. Slipher, of the Lowell Observatory, who headed a group of eminent astronomers whose groupings in the milky way with telescope and cameras located the new sphere.

Way out beyond Neptune, tagging bashfully behind his brother, the new planet's exact whereabouts, size and age are still unknown, and it hasn't even got a name. Its presence was mathematically predicted years ago by the late Dr. Percival Lowell, noted scientist who founded the observatory here, for the very purpose of identifying it Other noted astronomers, notably Dr. W. W. Campbell, director of ick Observatory, verified Lowell's calculations.

Today the faith in those calculations was rewarded by an announcement by Dr. Slipher that the new planet had been "sighted" last January 21 by an extremely delicate photographic lens, developed for the search. Announcement was withheld, Dr. Slipher said, "until we were absolutely sure."

The discovery revealed that the planet is 45 times as far from the earth as the earth is from the sun. Although its size has not been definitely determined, it is believed it may be bigger than Jupiter, largest member of the solar family, which is 1,200 times larger than the earth. And, said the announcement, it is at least no smaller than the earth.

Astronomically, the discovery is regarded as the greatest since the location of Neptune, eighth member of the solar system, in 1846. The astronomers who participated with Dr. Slipher in the discovery are C. O. Lampland, E. C. Slipher, J. C. Duncan, K. P. Williams, E. A. Edwards and T. B. Gill.

Until some one entitled to do so gives the sphere a name it is to be known as the "trans-Neptunian planet." First notice of the body was made by C. W. Tombaugh, photographer at the observatory, who saw a tiny spot on one of his plates. Astronomers soon declared it to be the long-sought planet.

An announcement in connection with the discovery was made at the observatory as follows:

"The announcement is made by the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff of the discovery of a celestial body whose rate and path among the stars indicates a new planetary member of the solar family beyond the outermost known planet, Neptune.

"Twenty-five years ago Dr. Percival Lowell, who founded Lowell Observatory, began a mathematical investigation for a planet beyond Neptune. The probability of locating such a

PARITY WITH FRANCE STILL IS ITALIAN AIM

QUIRINAL RECESSION MIGHT SAVE SITUATION

U. S. Makes What Is Called Last Offer to Japan; Nippon Sees Joker.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, March 13 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The London naval conference still lives tonight, although it is fighting for its life.

Not since the five-power parley opened nearly two months ago has there been such a day of hectic activity as this has been. While no positive results can be recorded, the situation is so serious that meeting of the Big Five scheduled for this afternoon had to be called off.

The result of a nerve-wrecking series of conferences was that Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, who after seeing Prime Minister MacDonald, Secretary of State Stimson and Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, said grimly this afternoon, "The conversations may be continued," tonight decided not to issue his prepared defense of the French security position, which it was widely felt would leave the situation desperate.

Mussolini May Hold Key.

Premier Benito Mussolini in Rome seems to hold the key to possible agreement. Foreign Minister Dino Grandi's long private discussion with Mr. MacDonald was probably the most important of the talks today. Mr. MacDonald urged Signor Grandi to name figures below those of France on the ground that M. Briand had hinted that in that case France would reduce her tonnage program.

Signor Grandi refused for the following three reasons which he gave the British prime minister, it was learned authoritatively from the Italian delegation tonight:

First, Signor Grandi intimated that France intends or may intend to smash the conference, and said that if Italy abandons her claim to parity with France here her claim will be hopelessly prejudiced when naval limitation talks are resumed at Geneva or elsewhere.

Second, Signor Grandi argued that at the Washington conference the United States and Great Britain both recognized Italian parity with France, for which, he said, Italy has not since then claimed parity with Great Britain, the United States or Japan.

French Program Held Misleading.

Third, The Italian foreign minister declared that the French program is misleading and that France in 1936 will be 120,000 tons stronger in new ships than appears on the surface. This, Signor Grandi says, shows that France is trying to build up a maximum force for that year in order to retain maximum bargaining power for the next conference and Italy must strain every nerve to do likewise and not be placed in an inferior position.

While all the chiefs of the five powers were carrying on discussions in an effort to end the Franco-Italian deadlock, the American and Japanese delegations continued their talks today and reached a point that on almost any previous day would have made their exchanges the high light of the news. After Senator Reed saw former Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki this morning, the American delegation met this afternoon, and later Mr. Stimson and Senator Reed spent almost two hours with First Lord of

HIGH TARIFF GROUP WINS ON 2 POINTS

Increased Duty on Sugar and Cement Impost Added to Tariff Bill.

CONTROVERSY IS HEATED

(Associated Press.)

The rejuvenated Republican protectionists dealt a double blow to the Senate tariff coalition of Democrats and Republican Independents yesterday by retaining in the Hawley-Smoot bill an increased sugar duty and an impost on cement, leaving only two major rate proposals to be disposed of—oil and lumber.

Preceding a heated controversy within Democratic ranks over the propriety of changing votes, the Senate voted, 47 to 38, against a motion to reconsider the sugar increase and by a similar vote kept in the bill the duty of 6 cents a hundred pounds on cement, now on the free list.

The duty on Cuban raw sugar thus was fixed definitely in the Senate measure at 2 cents a pound as against 1.76 now in effect. The House bill provides 2.40 cents, so the rate finally Tennessee River Association Tried to Influence Shoals Action.

Facing the Senate lobby committee for the second day, Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, testified yesterday that the Tennessee River Improvement Association could be described as a "lobby" organization.

He is a former president of the association, which has advocated the proposal of the American Cyanamid Co. to lease Muscle Shoals. He said it was not a political organization.

"Its purpose was, however, to endeavor to influence congressional action?" asked Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Montana.

the Admiralty A. V. Alexander and Mr. MacDonald.

The United States has made what has apparently been described as her final offer to Japan. In what respects this differs from previous proposals I am unable to learn tonight, but a high Japanese authority conversant with the day's proceedings said that the concessions look favorable until closely examined. Then he declared an eventual catch is to be found in each of them.

Japan to Hold Out to Last.

An intimation has reached M Briand from a Japanese quarter that Japan proposes to hold out to the end for her 70 per cent and will accept no offer from the United States that does not grant this in the spirit as well as in the letter.

A good omen at a time when any hopeful sign is seized upon was M Briand's change of tone after his talks with Mr. Stimson and Mr. Morrow, lasting nearly two hours, and later with Mr. MacDonald. When the newspapermen from many nations turned up in scores at the Carlton Hotel, French headquarters, to hear what was expected to be M. Briand's farewell, they were met with a colorless statement defending the French program issued by Minister of Marine Jacques-Louis Dumesnil.

M. Briand earlier had refused to say at luncheon that he was leaving, had hinted not that no French concessions would be made but that if any were made they would have to come from Premier André Tardieu, who arrives here from Paris tomorrow. He went over the familiar ground of his views already covered in these dispatches and laid special stress on his suggestion, which in some quarters, it is thought, may still save the situation and result in a five-power treaty.

Synchronized Retardation Hinted.

This is that the powers, while retaining their announced programs, should all agree to synchronized retardation, so that fleets in 1936 shall be proportionally less than now planned. France, he said, would do this if the others will.

Although this would mean retarding the American cruiser program and postponing American parity with Great Britain, the suggestion was eagerly discussed in the American camp, for it offers a conceivable hope of getting immediate French building down so that Great Britain will not feel obliged to exceed the figures agreed at the Rapidan camp between President Hoover and Mr. MacDonald.

M. Briand was ironical, even at the expense of his chief, remarking that if he gave anything away it would be defeatism, but if M. Tardieu does it will be described at home as a victory for France.

M. Dumesnil's figures, issued later, were depressing to the other delegations, however. They constitute an explanation of M. Tardieu's program as announced a month ago today. Boiled down, they mean that France proposes to have 120,000 tons of new ships in commission in 1936 and at that time 120,000 tons more would be on the stocks above the total of 724,000 tons announced by M. Tardieu.

Previous Figures Confirmed.

This confirms the figures given previously and shows why the British and Italians have claimed that the French fleet should be considered not on the basis of its 1936 strength, but on that of 1931, when the French statement shows it will be 713,513 tons of ships, all less than 20 years old, or 65 per cent of the British navy, rising to more than parity in submarines and 82 per cent in cruisers.

However, after this formidable document was issued, M. Briand was conciliatory and told correspondents:

"I shall not go away. I shall remain to the end. This sort of thing—difficulties and differences of opinion—happens at every conference."

It has been assumed that if France so desired and a five-power building agreement failed, France would probably sign the preamble and general clauses in any treaty drawn up, leaving three, or four, other powers to sign restrictive clauses with a special clause permitting higher building in case of fears of the French program.

Veiled Threat Whispered.

For the first time in informed American and British circles tonight what may be a veiled threat was whispered on this subject. Great Britain and the United States, it was suggested, no more, may prefer not to have a meaningless five-power treaty containing only generalities.

They might prefer to have a serious agreement among themselves, with the adherence of Japan and perhaps of Italy. Italy, in that case, would benefit by the same clause as Great Britain permitting more building if France made this necessary.

In some quarters tonight those hints were coupled with M. Briand's more conciliatory attitude and cause and effect were suggested. This is given here with all reserve, for it amounts to a suggestion that the United States and Great Britain are, in effect, though most cautiously, threatening France with isolation unless she shows some signs of compromise. It is wondered whether M. Briand has not scented some such thought in the air and has for this reason become more cautious.

ITALY-FRANCE PACT HELD PARLEY HOPE

Grandi Is Willing to Talk of Treaty Providing for Nonaggression.

BUILDING CURB IS HINTED

London, March 13 (A.P.).—An Italian proposal for a nonaggression pact with France stood in the offing of the naval conference tonight as one possible solution for the Italo-French disagreement over naval parity.

The Associated Press correspondent learned authoritatively that Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister and chief delegate, is envisaging the possibility that the French may regard such a pact as meeting their desires for security guarantees if no more extensive solution can be found with other countries.

In a conversation with Prime Minister MacDonald this afternoon, Signor Grandi laid before him several suggestions. While emphasizing Italy's demand for parity with France, he suggested that no matter what figure was agreed upon for this level of parity Italy might be willing to withhold part of her construction program and keep on the same basis as France.

Thus, if such a figure as 600,000 tons were agreed upon for these two countries to attain by 1936, and if France in the meanwhile ceased further construction in her program, Italy would guarantee to do likewise.

Throughout these discussions, some of which are informal, between the Italians and the other delegations and among the other delegations without the Italians, it has been noteworthy that Italy's principal argument for reduction was based upon the Kellogg-Briand pact and her commitments under the League of Nations covenant and the Locarno Treaty. The Italians, in speaking of the proposed nonaggression pact, made plain that they would add up all these commitments.

The French have generally criticized the Italian position, maintained since the conference opened, of sitting tight and waiting for developments. Other delegations, however, consider that Italy's thesis that her naval needs were relative was the proper attitude.

The French assert they are unable to agree to anything until the Italians can submit some tangible estimate of their naval needs. To this the Italians replied that their needs were not absolute, but still maintain their demand for the same figures as the French—namely, 724,000 tons.

Treasury Women Given Old Furlough Schedule

The two-days-a-month furlough for women in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, suspended when 200 women were transferred to the Treasurer's office to count the old large bills several months ago, has been restored. Ninety women temporarily employed as counters will be dismissed at the end of this month.

When the new small bills were put into circulation, the task of counting the old bills being retired from use was so pressing that it was found expedient to give the women only one day off a month, instead of the two-day leave which was put into effect several years ago as a means to avoid dismissals.

MACDONALD CABINET VICTOR IN TEST VOTE

Snowden's "persistent refusal" to divulge the Labor party's policy on safeguarding duties had "created uncertainty which had been harmful to trade and to employment."

He also asserted that Mr. Snowden had "wantonly and callously" aggravated domestic evils that had arisen from world conditions.

In replying for the government, Wedgewood Benn, secretary for India, struck back at Mr. Churchill, ascribing his violence against Mr. Snowden to "love of sensation and desire to be in the limelight."

Two Onslaughts in Week.

Prime Minister MacDonald's government has thus stood firm against two opposition onslaughts within a week. Though beaten on a minor amendment to its coal mines bill, which has been violently fought over at every stage of its parliamentary progress, it did not resign under the pressure of the combined Liberal and Tory victory.

In the absence of determined Liberal opposition today on the unemployment issue, a weak spot in the government's armor, the Laborites were never threatened.

The real test on unemployment, however, is yet to come in the House, and if either Conservatives or Liberals draw up a motion of censure whose wording is acceptable to both, Prime Minister MacDonald will have a fight to the finish on his hands.

(Associated Press.)

Postmaster General Brown announced the award yesterday of an ocean mail contract to the United States Lines calling for the construction of two vessels which will be the peers of any ship now sailing the high seas under the flag of any nation.

The contract for carrying the mails from New York to Southampton stipulates that the two new vessels to be constructed by the company, which now operates the fleet led by the Leviathan, shall cost not less than $60,000,000. They will equal, if not exceed, both in tonnage and speed, the Postoffice Department said, any vessels now operating in the transoceanic service.

MIRACLE IS NEEDED TO SAVE SEA PARLEY

Officially Hope Is Not Yet Abandoned, but Air of Pessimism Is Noted.

DISCUSSIONS ARE SHARP

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Neither President Hoover nor the State Department has entirely given up hope respecting the London naval conference, but it is conceded that nothing short of a miracle can now save the situation. Acting Secretary of State Cotton had a gleam of hope when he talked with the newspaper correspondents yesterday, but it apparently was more of a hope than an expectation.

Mr. Cotton confided in his audience to the extent of saying that he expected "something to break" as a consequence of the continued lull. But he did not say whether he expected the conference to break or whether some miraculous eleventh-hour development would inject a spark of new life into the proceedings.

President Hoover has been appealed to indirectly to save the conference, but there have been no intimations as to how this could be accomplished. Similar appeals have been made to Prime Minister MacDonald and M. Tardieu, and the latest appeal is now reported to be addressed to the Italians and the Japanese. In each particular case some one of the five nations is signaled out to make the sacrifice for the benefit of the others.

Collapse Looms.

But there is no assurance that any sacrifice would really avert the threatened collapse, according to yesterday's advices. And any sacrifice offered by the powers concerned would become a matter of record in case a later naval limitation conference is convened.

For example, the Japanese point out that any reduction in the Japanese demands for a 70 per cent ratio of large cruisers would be used effectively against future claims which Japan may wish to make at a naval conference.

Thus, if the London conference should collapse within the next two weeks or so, the Japanese delegation would return to Tokyo empty handed and with the added handicap of having attempted to make concessions which the people of Japan warned them not to make.

Discussions Called Acrimonious.

So far as the Italian position is concerned an attempt by Italy to save the conference by sacrificing her demand for parity with France might prove abortive and leave Italy in a weakened position for the future. The same applies with respect to the French position. So long as the French demands remain as they are M. Tardieu and M. Briand will not assume responsibility for weakening France's position in advance of future efforts by the preparatory commission of the League of Nations to reduce armaments.

According to late reports here the discussions between the respective delegates on Wednesday were particularly acrimonious and were marked by efforts bordering on desperation. The British blamed the French, the French retaliated by blaming Great Britain and the United States for having launched an abortive conference, and the Italians and Japanese apportioned the blame among the other delegations.

Senators here are anxious to hear from the senatorial representatives at London respecting the "fireworks of Wednesday," which were confined to sessions behind closed doors and not available to the public.

Delivery Association Named Suit Defendant

Two suits for an aggregate of $45,000 were filed yesterday in District Supreme Court against the National Delivery Association, Inc.

Odessa Fons, of 407 New York avenue northwest, and Mrs. Mollie Hazard, of 941 M street northwest, appear as plaintiffs. The former seeks to recover $15,000 while the latter seeks to get $30,000. Each of the plaintiffs alleges she was permanently injured last August 31 when the automobile she was riding in was struck by one of the defendant's delivery vans. Attorneys James A. O'Shea, John H. Burnett and Alfred Goldstein appear for the plaintiffs.

Dr. Ballou Is Speaker At Cosmopolitan Club

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of education, told the Cosmopolitan Club at its luncheon meeting at the Carlton yesterday that Washington school teachers are on a parity with those of any city in the country.

Plans for the membership campaign were outlined by Fred J. Rice and Arthur Defenderfer, captains of the opposing teams, and President William Callahan named Fred J. Rice, Stokes Sammons and James McKee as a committee to arrange for participation in the "ladies' night" of the Baltimore Club, March 26.

INQUIRY DEMANDED IN FLIER'S QUITTING

Tydings Offers Resolution to Find Why Williams Left Navy.

SYSTEM IS CRITICIZED

Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, yesterday demanded an investigation of the situation in the Navy Department resulting in the resignation of Lieut. Alford J. Williams, Navy speed flier. Lieut. Williams, who has been on a special assignment for two years in an effort to develop a new type of speed plane, quit when he was ordered to discontinue his experiments and go to sea for a three-year tour of routine duty. The resignation was accepted and the matter has been referred to at the department as a closed incident.

Senator Tydings' demand was made in a resolution providing for a sweeping inquiry by the Senate naval affairs committee with particular reference to the fact that the United States is deficinet "ith the very type of plane with which Lieut. Williams was experimenting." The naval affairs committee is authorized to proceed to get all information on the situation and the comparative strength strength of the United States and other nations in airplanes of the fast pursuit and bomber type.

Although the Maryland senator said yesterday that he had no first-hand knowledge of the correctness of reports that assignment of Lieut. Williams to routine sea service had been actuated by high naval officers indifferent to aircraft development, but the move struck him as being "foolish."

"Lieut. Williams was the most able man in his field and it is unfortunate for the Navy that he is leaving," he declared. "It is a strange system that trains a man like Williams and then, just as he is worth a great deal, sends him on routine sea duty.

"I hope the resolution is adopted by the Senate and the committee takes steps to find out what it is all about."

Under a bill being drafted by Representative Roy G. Fitzgerald (Republican), Ohio, Lieut. Williams would be promoted to a captaincy on the reserve list. The Ohioan declared that he had been promised "serious consideration" on the measure by Chairman Britten of the House naval committee and expected to introduce it shortly. Congress has recently promoted Richard E. Byrd from commander to rear admiral and has raised the rank of other noted officers.

Charge Is Hurled At Ship Hearing

Sale of U. S. Lines Looked Like Stock Scheme, Attorney Asserst.

(Associated Press.)

The final hearing on the sale of the American-France and American-Diamond Lines was held yesterday by the United States Shipping Board.

Opposing the sale of the lines to the United States Lines, Henry Herrick Bond, counsel for the Black-Diamond Co., operators of the American-Diamond Lines for the Government, charged that the P. W. Chapman purchase of the United States Lines "looked more like a stock scheme than an enterprise in the interest of American commerce."

In testifying why the two remaining Shipping Board lines, strategic freight lines in North Atlantic waters, should be sold to the American-Diamond Lines, the attorney said, "Possibly the United States Lines were planning another stock selling campaign if successful in their bid for the American-France and American-Diamond Lines."

Answering Mr. Bond's charges, T. S. Chapman, treasurer and counsel for the United States Lines, took the position that the Shipping Board was "competent to recognize the errors and omissions in the statements made here today, and is fully capable of reaching its own conclusions without further comment on our part."

During the conference the delegates will be received by President Ortiz Rubio and his cabinet, and will attend a rodeo and other events of interest.

$100,000 DEAL TOLD TO DOHENY JURORS

THREE WITNESSES HEARD

(Associated Press.)

The oft-told conflicting versions of that $100,000 transaction between Edward L. Doheny and Albert B. Fall, in 1921, were begun anew yesterday in the District of Columbia Supreme Court, with the Government seeking to convict the oil operator of bribery.

Defense counsel insisted again that Doheny advanced the money as a loan and was moved by friendship for the Interior Secretary, instead of considering it a bribe for the lease of the Elk Hills, Calif., naval oil reserve which went to his company.

After opening statements by counsel, three witnesses testified. From these Government attorneys established that Doheny's son, now dead, had withdrawn the $100,000 from the private bank of Blair & Co., of New York, on November 30, 1921. Later they read to the jury Doheny's testimony before the Senate oil committee that he had loaned Fall the $100,000 in cash on that date.

Graham Youngs, New York investment broker, who, as treasurer of Blair & Co. nine years ago, delivered the cash to Edward L. Doheny, jr., briefly described that transaction.

He testified he had withdrawn $100,000 from the First National Bank of New York on a Blair & Co. check and identified a check by young Doheny on Blair & Co. for the same amount.

The Government also called Ernest K. Hill, clerk to the Senate oil committee, when Doheny appeared and told of his loan to Fall. He identified the note F-11 gave Doheny and which the latter presented to the committee.

Theodore Mack, clerk of the Interior Department, identified vouchers Fall turned in for travel expenses.

Prior to the beginning of the testimony Doheny was depicted to the jury as a briber of a Cabinet officer and as a patriotic citizen who shouldered himself with an unwanted contract to help the Government meet a menace from a foreign power in the Pacific.

Owen J. Roberts, as the special Government prosecutor, gave the first picture, while the second was given by Frank J. Hogan, for the defense. Justice William Hitz instructed the jury of three women and seven men to consider these statements only as of what each side would seek to prove.

Smith Co. Receiver Pleas Are Refused

Appeal of Stockholders Is Denied by Delaware Chancellor.

Wilmington, Del., March 13.—Chancellor Jonah Wolcott yesterday denied the application made by a group of stockholders for the appointment of a receiver for the F. H. Smith Co., of Washington. Final hearing for the appointment of a receiver will take place at a later date after an inspection of the books of the company and the gathering of evidence to prove the points in the bill filed.

Chancellor Wolcott in denying the motion for a receiver pendente lite held that the facts were not in accordance with the principles laid down heretofore in cases in which application was made for the appointment of a receiver pendente lite.

It was explained today by counsel for the complaints that it was necessary to prove that facts, developed since the filing of the original motion for the appointment of a receiver, to warrant appointment of a receiver, during the case, to prevent waste of assets of the company, and then only in an extraordinary clean-cut case. Counsel felt that the chancellor's action does not by any means end the case, and that in view of the circumstances the action of the chancellor was not entirely unexpected.

Capitol Bugs Disturb Senators During Rest

(Associated Press.)

An alarm was sounded quickly by agitated senators who frequent the room to rest on the couches during conferences with newspapermen.

The excitement was quelled somewhat by a pronouncement that the insects were a species of moths.

Nevertheless, demands were rushed to Chairman Moses, of the rules committee, for a hasty cleaning of the furniture in the presidential room. He referred the protests to cleaners in the Senate Office Building, who reported proudly just last week that the Capitol finally had been rid of roaches.

The room of the hubbub is that reserved for the President when he comes to the Capitol on the closing day of a session to sign the last-minute bills.

THREE STATES FIGHT MYSTERY PARALYSIS

160 UNDER OBSERVATION

Atlanta, Ga., March 13 (A.P.).—Health departments of Mississippi, Georgia and Tennessee tonight were confronted with the problem of determining the cause and finding a treatment for a mysterious paralysis that afflicted 160 persons in the three States within the last week.

The outbreaks have occurred in limited areas. So far there have been no fatalities, although all patients have been incapacitated through inability to flex the lower limbs.

Dr. E. L. Bishop, State health commissioner for Tennessee, from Nashville today said the cause of the malady had not been determined. "Anything that I might say at this time would be based purely on speculation," he said. "We will reserve judgment until we get further information."

120 Cases Reported.

The outbreak in the South first was reported from east Tennessee and today there were 120 cases in four counties, but no new cases had been reported within the last day or so.

Members of the State health department are cooperating with local physicians in Tennessee in treating the disease and seeking its cause.

A new occurrence of the disease was reported in east Mississippi today, with 30 persons suffering with the malady.

Afflicted Are Isolated.

Dr. Felix J. Underwood, State health officer at Jackson, Miss., said the county officers had been ordered to isolate the persons afflicted and ordered Dr. H. C. Ricks, State epidemiologist, to visit each person afflicted to make a study of the disease.

The Mississippi Board of Health said each of the six cases had a record of drinking Jamaica ginger.

In Georgia nine cases have been reported, and four other persons are under observation. T. F. Sellers, chief bacteriologist of the State Board of Health, said the disease apparently was due to alcohol and that it was not communicable. "Indications are that the cases of paralysis in Georgia, similar to those in Tennessee," Mr. Sellers said, "are caused from drinking Jamaica ginger and are not communicable or contagious."

Providence, R. I., March 13 (A.P.).—Hoping to halt the paralysis and blindness which has sent 15 persons to hospitals here since the first of the week, State authorities will cause analyses to be made tomorrow of Jamaica ginger samples obtained by police in five Providence stores today. Seven victims of partial paralysis were questioned at the Rhode Island Hospital and identified the stores where they had bought the ginger.

Byrd Denies He Will Claim Land in Antarctic for U. S.

His Discoveries Are for World as Much as for His Own Country, Explorer Asserts in New Zealand City.

Dunedin, New Zealand, March 13 (A.P.).—In an interview today, Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, resting here after returning from his exploration of the Antarctic regions and his epoch-making flight over the South Pole, said that he had no intention of claiming for the United States the new Antarctic lands he had discovered.

He said that when he found new land in the Antarctic he had found it for the world as much as for his own country, just as his predecessors had worked and struggled for the world at large.

His ideal, he said, was to secure complete understanding between the United States and the British Empire. He paid tribute to the British explorers, saying they had done the pioneer work and he had merely taken it up where others had left off.

When he and his comrades saw from the air the wastes over which Roald Amundsen and Capt. Scott had struggled on foot, they were filled with amazement and admiration for the intrepid and the indefatigable courage that made possible such endeavors.

He considered that his flight of discovery, in which 280,000 square miles of new territory were located, and his observations from the air are more valuable scientifically than the famous flight over the South Pole.

Some idea of the work carried out by the Byrd expeditino was given by Frank T. Davies, the physicist accompanying it.

Working in conjunction with Larry M. Gould, the expedition's geologist, on the constitutino of the great ice barrier, he said he had obtained exceedingly interesting results. Study of the conditions of growth of ice crystals in the crevasses had given him great food for thuoght. He also studied the dust content of the air and made exhaustive investigations nito the "Aurora Australis."

As to the interriation of magnetism, the auroral activity, and radio reception, he said that little information of a conclusive nature will be available for some time.

VITALE IS REMOVED FOR INCOMPETENCE

ROTHSTEIN LOAN SCORED

New York, March 13 (A.P.).—The five justices of the appellate court, from whose decision there is no appeal, unanimously ordered Magistrate Albert H. Vitale removed from the bench today.

They found him "guilty of gross carelessness, inattention, ignorance and incompetence."

Two charges had been preferred against Vitale by the New York City Bar Association after an investigation that grew out of a dinner given in his honor in a Bronx Italian restaurant last December.

While the magistrate was making a speech at that dinner, seven men appeared and held up the guests, among whom was a police detective, whose gun they took. Charges by Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen that both the dinner and the holdup were deliberately staged by gunmen involved in a dispute over a murder contract, led to the bar association's scrutiny of Magistrate Vitale's record on the bench.

The association filed charges with the appellate court that Magistrate Vitale impaired public confidence in the courts by borrowing $20,000 a year ago last summer from Arnold Rothstein, notorious Broadway gambler, whose subsequent murder is still unsolved, and that he did corruptly and in defiance of the evidence release from custody Charles Fawcett, a larceny suspect brought before him in August, 1928.

An hour after attorneys for both sides had concluded their summations today, the five justices convicted Vitale on the charge involving the Rothstein loan and ordered his removal from the bench. They acquitted him of the other charge.

Brickbats & Bouquets

By JAMES HAY, JR.

INNOCENT tourists loitering in the public galleries during the Senate debates on the tariff have noted in eye-popping astonishment how often and completely the lawmakers wrecked this enormously rich republic.

Eight times in one day, for instance, some senator leaped to his feet and, with lamentation in his utterance and ferocity in his gesticulation, charged that by the lowering or raising of the rate under discussion his colleagues would plunge multitudes of men, women and children into starvation and transform countless square miles of prosperous factories into barren fields from which not even a scavenging crow could gather a square meal in a whole day's flight.

Injustice, they said, was framing the bill. Tyranny and oppression manned the battlements! Cruelty and rapacity robbed the masses with the speedy thoroughness of Jesse James!

• • • •

WITH few exceptions, thundred Mr. Blaine, the increases on farm products provided in the bill were "nothing more than a lot of gold bricks handed to" the helpless and screaming farmers.

Mr. Hatfield, with gloom pervading his person and tuning his voice, made no secret of his conviction that if the rate advocated by Mr. Copeland were adopted it would mean irreparable ruin to the entire ultramarine-blue industry of this country.

Mr. Smith, dolefully picturing the whole American people as impoverished, emaciated or dead because of an iniquitous bill, displayed all the cheerfulness inherent in Hamlet's blackest dejection as he confessed that he felt derelict in his duty when he sat there and failed to lift his voice against a system of taxation that brought disaster to the Nation.

Mr. Thomas, of Idaho, suggestive of sackcloth and ashes, informed the wide, wide world that to reduce the rate on litharge to 2½ cents would annihilate an American-made product.

• • • • •

MR. HEFLIN, whom the Senate stenographers can always hear with ease, tossed off the fact that the paper manufacturers down in his State were writhing and moaning under the prospect of an unthinkable tax on salt cake; and Mr. Pittman, who seemed to be as much in despair of the republic's future as anybody on the floor, gave it as his frank opinion that senators had "approached and nearly reached chaos in legislation."

So it lugubriously went. Every time somebody proposed a rate somebody else pictured a catastrophe. In the lifelike portraiture of their eloquence senators showed their hearers the pestilence that walketh in darkness and the destruction that wasteth at noonday. The chamber was full of Sampsons pulling down the temple. Senators suffered vicariously and bled by proxy.

No wonder Mr. Hoover wants the bill out of the way. It generates enough woe, gloom and heartbreak to bring Government efficiency down to zero.

STAGG DEFENDS PROHIBITION BEFORE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

withdrawn before any effort was made to present it.

Besides Stagg, who testified out of the wealth of 38 years' experience in the direction of youthful athletes, and Sherwood and Hay, the committee heard Arthur H. Hood, Philadelphia insurance man, representing his city's federation of men's Bible classes, and John A. McSperran, of Furness, Pa., former master of the Pennsylvania State Grange.

Stagg told the committee that the youth of today were fortunate in growing up in a country where sale of intoxicants is prohibited.

"The great mass of people in the United States in my judgment," he observed, "are strong for the law and will continue to be despite the massed attack which is being made upon it.

Says Wets Fanatics.

"As I see it, the prohibition law is not observed, first, by 'the idle rich,' second, by 'the ne'er do-wells,' as Westbrook Pegler calls them; third, by the class who demand social privileges for themselves, and fourth, by the follow-talls, that is, the weak ones who just go along."

Sherwood denied that American business men were habitual violators of prohibition laws. He charged the wets with having become fanatics. A long list of messages written by leading business men from all over the country supporting his views and denouncing testimony presented to the committee by Grayson M. P. Murphy, of New York, was read to the committee. Sherwood termed the present investigation as "primarily a publicity hearing."

Hay, who was a Democratic candidate for United States senator in 1928, said that in 12,000 miles of travel during that campaign he never saw a place that could be identified as a saloon or speakasy in any small town or city of Missouri.

St. Louis Drunkenness.

"It's doubtless true that if I had been hunting for liquor I could have found it, but in the old days I would not have had to hunt for it. In the rural sections of my State liquor plays a very minor part in the lives of the people."

Hay said that during 1903-04 when he attended law school in St. Louis he saw more drunkenness in public places than in all the years since prohibition.

"We have wounded and killed enough, I know," he said, "but who can tell us what we would have done during the last ten years if liquor had flowed as in dramshop days?

"You talk about the crime wave and damn prohibition for it. Have you stopped to think what a wave it would have been with more liquor instead of less. Add to your moral let down, your automobile, your deadly weapons, your good roads—more liquor, and then contemplate the possibilities."

Scores State Control.

The witness said that if State control were adopted as a substitute "a half dozen wet States would make a whole Nation wet."

"Mr. duPont suggested control by State liquor commissions, something on the order of State railroad commissions," he said. "Yes, these State commissions would have about as much control over the liquor business as the present State railroad commissions have over the operations of railroads! Good roads, automobiles, railroads and airplanes have so wiped out community and State lines as to make the talk of local or State opinion in dealing with the liquor problem mere foolish babbling."

Hay said he did not believe the Canadian plan would satisfy the opponents of prohibition and added it would only make enforcement more difficult.

"Likewise," he said, "I think that to make the purchaser equally guilty with the seller would add greatly to the difficulties of enforcement. Both seller and purchaser would invoke the constitutional protection against self-incrimination and agents who testify to purchases made would stand before juries as violators of the law.

Mrs. Willebrandt Cited.

"If you ask whether I think we should continue with conditions as they are, I say no. Conditions ought to be and can be bettered. Prohibition can be and I believe will be made more effective."

"In my opinion the thing most needed on the side of the governmental action is an emphasis on State and local enforcement," he added.

Questioning of Hay by LaGuardia on his connection with the Heber Nations trial for prohibition law violation in St. Louis brought protests from committee members. The witness said he had entered the case out of sympathy for Gus O. Nations, brother of the defendant, whom he termed "a most fearless, incorruptible public official."

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt's name was brought up by La Guardia, who recalled her articles on the Nations matter. Hay retorted that a libel suit was now pending against the former assistant Attorney General as a result of her statements in those articles.

Mrs. Peabody "Insult."

Mrs. Peabody presented herself at the afternoon session only to be faced by a charge that she had "coached" the witnesses of Wednesday and had prevented the committee from learning the true views of several of the women. Representative Celler (Democrat), New York, made the accusation and demanded permission to read from the transcript of Wednesday's proceedings to prove it.

Chairman Graham ruled against him. In the heated discussion that ensued, several committee members expressed resentment of what they termed the "insult" to the witness.

Representative Sumners (Democrat), Texas, declared that in all the time he had been in the House he had never heard of such treatment of a witness.

Representative Stobbs (Republican), Massachusetts, called for "fair treatment" and demanded that Mrs. Peabody be given an opportunity to inspect the record and later be allowed to withdraw any remarks she might care to. The chairman granted the request, as Representative Hammer (Democrat), North Carolina, interrupted to demand that Celler's charges of "coaching" be stricken from the record. He made it a motion, but the chairman banged his gavel and declared the hearing adjourned.

Woman Cultist Draws Ter min $45,000 Theft

Los Angeles, March 13 (A.P.).—Mrs. May Otis Blackburn, cult leader, today was sentenced to one to ten years in San Quentin Penitentiary for the grand theft of $45,000 from Clifford Dabney, oil operator and cult follower.

A writ of probable cause was granted by superior court, permitting her to remain in the county jail pending an appeal. A motion for a new trial was denied. Mrs. Blackburn was accused of obtaining the money from Dabney on false representations that angels were aiding her in writing a book which would reveal the location of vast mineral deposits on the earth.

GREAT FALLS PARK BILL IS SUPPORTED

OPPOSITION IS WAITING

Twenty-five men and women, representing not only civic organizations in Washington, Maryland and Virginia, but organizations with members all over the country, indorsed the Capper-Cramton park development bill at a hearing last night before the Senate District committee.

The hearing was adjourned just as the opposition to the bill was about to break. This was to come from the representative of a group that wants to develop the water power at Great Falls and from the representative of another group that wants to build a toll bridge near Great Falls.

Elisha Hanson, attorney for the Potomac River Corporation, made up of Chicago and Cleveland power men, which has applied for a preliminary permit to harness the Great Falls waters, was told that he would be given a hearing at a later date.

Bridge Was to Get Hearing.

Norman Landreau, attorney for the Great Falls Bridge Co., which has been granted permission to build the toll bridge, also was promised a hearing.

Mr. Hanson said that the Cramton bill, as it is now written, leaves the question of power development up in the air. His company, he said, has spent $100,000 on surveys, and wants to know definitely what is to be done about the project.

Several weeks ago, Representative Cramton (Republican), of Michigan, declared that a power lobby was trying to kill his bill.

The Great Falls Bridge Co. was given authority in a bill that passed the last Congress to put a toll bridge across the Potomac near the Falls, and was about to start construction when the Capper-Cramton bill was amended in the House so as to prohibit such a bridge.

Free Bridge Sought.

When it reached the Senate, Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, furtehr amended it so that it now provides for a free bridge to be put up, at a cost to the Federal Government of $1,500,000.

The hearing last night was conducted with Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, presiding, but wath Representative Cramton as a sort of stage manager.

At the outset, he outlined the provisions of the bill, which, briefly, are these: It provides for a Federal loan of $16,000,000 to the District of Columbia for the purchase of park and playground lands, the money to be paid back without interest at the rate of $1,000,000 a year.

It provides for a Federal appropriation of $7,000,000 toward a George Washington Memorial Parkway and development of parks in nearby Maryland. The George Washington Parkway would skirt the Potomac, from Mount Vernon to Great Falls on the Virginia side and from Fort Washington to Great Falls on the Maryland side. Maryland and Virginia would have to match the Federal contribution on this project, and Maryland would have to pay two-thirds of the cost of the park development in her adjacent counties.

Scenic Beauty Would Be Saved.

Representative Cramton declared that the bill would preserve some of the most beautiful scenery to be found anywhere; would save millions of dollars that would have to be paid if there is delay, and will provide Washington and the people of the country with a magnificent recreation area.

Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the Federation of Citizens Association, told the committee last night that in all his 25 years' experience in local civic affairs he had never known a measure to get such universal approval as the Capper-Cramton bill.

Maj. E. Brooke Lee, speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates, and representing the Montgomery County Federation of Citizens Associations indorsed the bill and declared that Maryland is eager to do its share in preserving the natural splendor in the counties bordering Washington. However, he said, inasmuch as Maryland is paying two-thirds of the cost to retain title to the lands, as is provided by an amendment to the bill

Arlington County's Support.

W. B. Armstrong, of the Arlington County Federation of Citizens, declared his people were for the bill, but thought that the bill ought to say that unless a free bridge is put up at Government expense, then a private company should be allowed to put up a toll bridge.

HUSTON TESTIFIES ON LOBBY ACTIVITY

"That is right," the witness responded.

"So that it may very properly be described as a lobbying organization, may it not?" Senator Walsh asked.

"I think the word 'lobby' is broad enough to take in this organization," Mr. Huston said.

The witness, whose activities on Muscle Shoals legislation are being investigated by the committee, also testified that two men had called to see him since he became Republican chairman to discuss the Alabama power and nitrate project.

He said Chester Gray, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, "spoke" to him and that he "saw" C. W. Ashcraft, of Alabama. Both have advocated the cyanamid company proposal. While in the midst of this questioning, the committee adjourned until today, when Mr. Huston was

At the outest of the hearing yesterday, a sharp clash took place between Chairman Caraway, of the committee, a Democrat, and Senator Robinson, of Indiana, the only regular Republican on the committee.

Referring to a statement Wednesday by Caraway that Huston had been charged with taking money and keeping it in connection with the payment of delegates' expenses to the 1924 Republican national convention at Cleveland, Senator Robinson said:

"Mr. Huston, this part of the statement that you were charged with taking money and keeping it is not true, is it?"

"It is not, sir," Mr. Huston replied.

Senator Caraway attempted to question Mr. Huston about the testimony, but Senator Robinson broke in.

"Wait a minute," he said. "I don't see that there is any use going into the politics of Tennessee in a lobby investigation. The purpose of this committee is to investigate lobbying. If the lobbying activities at Muscle Shoals are to be investigated, here is the place to investigate it, but this is not a Democratic or a Republican committee and it ought to be impartial."

CONVICT HELD

BLACKHANDER ROBS CAPITAL SHOPMAN

taken seriously at first. Sachs decided, however, to consult Inspector William Shelby, who immediately began an investigation. The first letter was followed by two others, each note becoming more threatening than the other.

Inspector Shelby, realizing the seriousness of the affair, had detectives assigned to guard the Sachs home. They waited, but the anticipated action by the blackhander did not materialize. The writer of the note made no demand for money.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning Sachs received a telephone call asking him to go to a garage on the Defense highway near Johnnys Corner, Md. He set out immediately. He was traveling at a slow speed along the highway when a coupe suddenly drew up alongside his machine and ordered him to halt.

"What's the big hurry?" said the stranger. "You had better cut down that speed."

As Sachs proceeded on his way he noticed that the driver of the car had District license plates on his machine and wondered by what authority he had halted him.

Meets Stranger Again.

Sachs drove down the highway for about 3 miles when he noticed the stranger who had ordered him to stop standing at the fork of the road. He beckoned Sachs to stop, and as the machine halted leaped on the running board and pressed a revolver against Sachs' temple.

"I'm tired of sending you blackhand letters," Sachs said the stranger said. "I'll kill you if you don't get out of the glass repair business."

Keeping the gun pressed to Sachs' side, the stranger ordered his victim to drive on. After driving about 2 miles Sachs noticed a number of laborers at work and made an attempt to stop.

"I'll bump you off right here if you stop," the blackhander said.

Sachs Knocked Down.

A mile further down the highway the blackhander ordered his victim to stop. As Sachs alighted from the car the stranger punched him in the jaw, felling him. He then robbed Sachs of $43.

"I'll blow your head off if you squawk to the police," was the parting shot of the thug as he leaped into Sachs' machine and sped away.

Sachs walked several miles to the garage, where he had been summoned. He learned from the proprietor that no one had called for him to make repairs.

Sachs, who lives at 906 Emerson street northwest, immediately reported to the police his experience and a wide search is being made for the thug.

Bradley Funeral Set for Tomorrow

Real Estate Operator Died Suddenly From Heart Attack.

Funeral services for Robert E. Bradley, real estate operator with offices in the Colorado Building, who lived at 1722 N street northwest, will be held from the late residence tomorrow afternoon.

Services will be conducted by the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, if he is able to attend, according to relatives. Interment will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Bradley died suddenly yesterday morning after a heart attack, in the Washington Homeopathic Pharmacy, 1007 H street northwest. The Fire Department Rescue Squad and the Emergency ambulance were called and an attempt made to revive him, but he was pronounced dead by Dr. James Norrell of Emergency Hospital.

Mr. Bradley was a brother of the late Andrew C. Bradley, justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. His wife, who was the daughter of the late Admiral Stephens, died some time ago. He is survived by one son, Stevens Bradley, of this city, and two sisters, with whom he lived, Miss Henrietta G. Bradley and Miss Catherine Bradley.

FORMER CONVICT IS SEIZED ON TRAIN

Charles Leet Said to Have Robbed Passengers on Pullman.

HOME IN CHEVY CHASE

Dapper Charles Leet, paroled convict who, police say, has been able to keep a palatial apartment in the fashionable Chevy Chase, Md., through criminal earnings, was trapped by railroad detectives early yesterday as he was looting Pullman berths on the Pennsylvania Railroad between Philadelphia and the Union Station here.

The arrest of Leet has resulted in recovery of hundreds of dollars worth of jewelry which police say was stolen from railroad passengers in recent months.

The trap which resulted in the capture of Leet was laid by three railroad detectives. For many months they have been attempting to capture the culprit who has been fleecing railroad passengers. At 12:30 a. m. yesterday they boarded a train in Philadelphia and made a casual survey of the passengers. They decided to lay in wait in the Pullman cars.

As the train was speeding through Maryland, they said, they heard soft footsteps in the Pullman car. They claim they saw the prisoner putting his hand through the curtains and snatching purses and jewelry from compartments where passengers were asleep.

The detectives suddenly leaped upon Leet, who attempted to fight off his captors, but he was quickly subdued. The detectives say they found a purse containing $250. Later they learned that the purse had been taken from the compartment of Mrs. A. J. Hort, of New York and Chicago, who is employed as secretary to Marshal Field 3d. The police also found a quantity of jewelry, which they will attempt to have identified by passengers.

A visit to the elaborately furnished apartment disclosed a large quantity of jewelry, several diamond rings, a string of pearls and several gold watches.

Leet was placed under arrest here by Detective Ben Johnson of the Sixth Precinct station. Later he was taken to police headquarters, where, under questioning of Inspector William Shelby, he freely admitted the robberies, police say. He will be arraigned in Police Court tomorrow on a charge of transporting stolen goods into the District.

Leet, who is 33 years old, began his criminal career, according to the records, in 1915, when he was arrested and sentenced to three and one-half years in the District Penitentiary for house breaking. He was sentenced to Blackwell Island, New York, in 1918 for violating a parole after being given a suspended sentence on a burglary charge. In 1918 he was sentenced to serve one year by Baltimore authorities for grand larceny.

In 1920 he returned to the District and renewed his criminal activities, being sentenced to three years in Atlanta for burglaries.

In 1924 Leet, who has many aliases, was arrested in Cleveland, Ohio, for forgery. He was sentenced to Ohio State Prison to serve from 3 to 20 years. He was paroled after serving five years of his term.

MRS. KENDALL PLANS TO WED HERE, REPORT

they had received no information as to plans for the wedding, and inquiries at Kentsdale brought the information that Mrs. Kendall was not in town and was not expected until next week.

Since the death of Mr. Kendall, well-known financier and stock market operator a year ago, Mrs. Kendall has spent most of her time in New York, visiting Washington only occasionally. She has recently returned to New York after spending some time in Florida and visiting her daughter, Mrs. George Grant Mason at her home in Havana, Cuba.

Popular in society and identified with many philanthropic activities, Mrs. Kendall made many warm friends in the years that she made Washington her home. She was Miss Elizabeth Coyle, of Thomasville, Ga. As a young woman and after an early marriage which ended in divorce she achieved success as a singer, giving drawing room entertainments in many fashionable houses in New York, Boston and Newport. She retains her interest in music and has been engaged recently in compiling for publication a volume of Negro spirituals, learned as a child from an old colored nurse employed in her family, musical settings for which have been written by Mrs. Mildred Kolb Schulze, of Washington.

After the wedding, it is said, Mr. Lawson-Johnston will take his bride to the South for a honeymoon. They are expecetd to come to Washington for a few weeks in the spring before going to London to make their home. Mr. Lawson-Johnston's brother, Capt. Percy Lawson-Johnston, of the Royal Scots Guards, has come to this country to be best man at the wedding.

DINNER TENDERED BUSINESS WOMEN

GUESTS ARE PRESENTED

Approximately 100 members of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Alexandria, their guests and friends, attended the public relations dinner of the club at the George Mason Hotel last night. Miss Helen Havener, editor of Independent Woman, the official publication of the Federation of Women's Clubs, was the principal speaker.

After invocation by the Rev. D. L. Snyder, Miss Mary Troth, president of the club, introduced the special guests, Mrs. D. Mauchlin Nivin, president of the Alexandria Garden Club; Mrs. E. E. Carver, president of the General Parent-Teacher Association; Mrs. Albert H. Cohen, president of the Arlington County Business and Professional Women's Club; Edmund F. Ticer, vice mayor of Alexandria; Thomas J. Fannon, member of the city council; Wallace Lawrence, city manager; Fred C. Goodnow, president of the Chamber of Commerce; R. C. Bowton, superintendent of the Alexandria public schools; Robert G. Carter, president of the Kiwanis Club, and Dr. S. Nelson Gray, president of the Rotary Club.

Miss Dorothy Otley then announced that the club had decided to honor the pioneer women of Alexandria, the first to engage in their respective professions or vocations.

Work of All Is Told.

Miss Emily Millard and Miss Sadie Crittenden, she said, graduated in nursing in 1896, and were the first registered nurses in Alexandria; Miss Fannie Wilson, the first teacher of boys in Alexandria; Miss Fannie Davis, who 39 years ago, became the first teacher of girls; Mrs. Mary Hunter, who has been operating a grocery store for 59 years in the same location; Miss Kate Maupin, who, in 1872, became the first woman bookkeeper, and later conducted a toy shop; Mrs. C. E. Bradley, who for 55 years has conducted a millinery store; Mrs. Mary Haynes, who 43 years ago became the first Government clerk in Alexandria; Miss Betty Keyes, who in 1882 became the first telephone operator in Alexandria and one of the first in Virginia; Miss Lucy Graves, the first woman stenographer, who graduated in a business course in 1893, was secretary to Miss Clara Barton, president of the American Red Cross, and who accompanied Miss Barton on her first visit to Armenia and later to Cuba; Mrs. Dolly Peyton Shepperson, who 25 years ago was the first woman to engage in newspaper work; Miss Mildred Callahan, the first woman lawyer, and Mrs. Lillie Cunningham, one of three women who are licensed morticians, and the only one in northern Virginia. Each of these pioneer women was requested to stand so that they might be recognized.

City Manager Wallace Lawrence was the only man requested to address the meeting, and he spoke in most complimentary terms of the accomplishments of the women in the business and professional world, and stated his belief that business and professional women's clubs are responsible in great part for the rapid growth of our country. He complimented the clubs for their interest in Boy Scout work, which he characterized as the character forming and man building organization.

Other Numbers Heard.

Other numbers on the program were whistling songs by Mrs. Lewis; a vocal trio, consisting of Mrs. Harrie White, Mrs. Harry B. Caton and Mrs. Orlando Kirk, accompanied by Mrs. D. C. Book, and a violin solo by Miss Jean Westbrook, of Washington.

Miss Havener's talk stressed the importance of the progress made by women in business and the professions in the twentieth century, and drew a contrast between the business woman of 50 years ago and today.

At the beginning, she said, the only thing a woman could hope to accomplish was to be self-supporting and, when she became too old to support herself, to be a more or less welcome guest in the family of a relative. Ten years ago, she said, a prominent business woman predicted that in a few years every business woman would be supporting an apartment of her own, and "even driving a car of her own." Now, she said, this prediction has been exceeded.

Big Increase Is Seen.

In 1920, when the last census figures were available, there were 8,500,000 women engaged in business or the professions, and she believes that when the 1930 figures are available there will be found to be not less than 10,000,000 or 12,000,000, or even 15,000,000, engaged in gainful occupations.

The reasons for the business emancipation of woman, she said, are several, but the principal one is economic necessity, and the organization of business women's clubs has also been an important factor.

Among the things accomplished by these clubs, she named the raising of educational standards for women and the saving of women from "blind-alley jobs," and she believes that, great as have been the accomplishments, the work of the clubs is only in its infancy.

HIGHER LEVY ON SUGAR ADDED TO LIST OF TARIFF MEASURES

to be enacted is certain to be an increase. The House and Senate conferees will have to choose either the 2 or 2.40 cent rate or compromise.

Duty on Cotton.

The House bill provides a duty of 8 cents a hundred pounds on cement and the differences between the Senate and House rates on this commodity also will have to be thrashed out in conference. The only other important action of the day was a 44-to-32 vote to sustain a previous decision to levy a duty of 7 cents a pound on long staple cotton, or cotton of a staple of 1⅛ inches and over, which is used in tire fabrics and fine cotton threads and goods.

This cotton, which is imported largely from Egypt by textile manufacturers, is now on the free list. Previous increases on wool waste and wool rags also were concurred in.

Thirteen Republicans and 25 Democrats voted for the motion of Senator Nye (Republican Independent), North Dakota, to take another ballot on sugar. Thirty-eight Republicans and nine Democrats opposed it.

Senator Nye had voted twice before for a higher sugar duty, but after the Senate recently approved the cement levy he said he was not sure whether the two actions and those to come on oil and lumber were not influenced by a "trading agreement." He therefore proposed reconsideration of both rates to "make my record clear."

Thomas in Controversy.

Senators Nye and Frazier (Republican Independent), North Dakota, were the only ones to vote for reconsideration of sugar after having voted for the increase. Senators Copeland (Democrat), New York, and Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, who opposed an increase, also voted against reconsideration, offsetting the other two votes.

Senators Thomas, of Oklahoma, and Harrison, of Mississippi, both Democrats, engaged in a bitter controversy after the vote. The former had asserted that individual senators were not voting for rates to protect their States but were criticizing him and those behind him for proposing or suggesting an oil tariff to help Oklahoma, and were accusing the independent producers of lobbying.

Denying all senators were voting solely to aid their respective States, Senator Harrison said some had changed their minds and votes overnight and never before had a tariff bill been written in the fashion of the pending measure.

Change Votes Overnight.

"I would to God that every Democrat had stood by his votes on this tariff bill," he said. "We have individuals here who change their votes overnight. More political corpses have been made by votes here recently than ever before in history."

Senator Thomas replied that 28 senators had changed their votes on his resolution to restrict the revision to farm products.

"I proposed a tariff on oil," he added, "which fitted precisely the language of the last Democratic platform providing for a competitive tariff, but not a man on this floor who attended the Democratic convention supported my amendment."

Senator Harrison, pointing a finger at Senator Thomas, said mass meetings to stir up support for an oil levy were held in Mississippi at the "instance of people from Oklahoma," but he could not vote for the proposition.

Walsh Denounces Levy.

The vote to keep long staple cotton on the dutiable list in the bill came after a denunciation of the rate by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, who said it would have a "very depressing effect on the cotton textile industry."

Senator Overman (Democrat), North Carolina, who said he voted against the levy despite the fact that his State produced over 1,000,000 bales of cotton, contended the kind of long staple used by manufacturers in this country was not produced here and would tax the latter $35 a bale for the Egyptian.

Favoring the duty, Senator Shortridge (Republican), California, author of the seven cent amendment, said:

"We have the climate, the soil and the people to produce this cotton and the question is whether we or others are going to supply the home market."

Another Democratic Tilt.

Another tilt between Democrats occurred when Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, opposing an increase on wool wastes, asserted that "before we get through with this bill it won't have any friends."

He added that the Senators who had been "espousing the cause of the farmers ought to put their mourning bands on because they are not going to get anything out of the tariff."

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, interrupted Walsh to remark that manufacturers had disseminated "propaganda" among the farmers urging high tariffs as a means of farm relief.

Senator George (Democrat), Georgia, declared it was useless to protest high duties since a new coalition had been formed by "the junior senator from Pennsylvania (Senator Grundy), who in vacation time is a revenue collector for Republican campaigns."

Coalition Defeats Plan.

After a lengthy debate the coalition came back at the night session and defeated, 32 to 29, an amendment previously placed in the bill to make dutiable at the higher wool rates mixed cotton goods containing 15 per cent or more wool by weight.

Urging concurrence in the amendment, Senator Grundy contended imports of the mixed goods came in at the lower cotton-cloth rates and displaced about 200,000 pounds of clean wool a month in the manufacture of cloth.

Opposing the amendment, Senator Blaine (Republican independent), Wisconsin, said it would be "a license for the wool manufacturers to steal 42 cents a pound protection when they were only entitled to 7½ cents."

A compromise suggested by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, calling for application of the wool rates on the wool content of mixed cotton cloths and the cotton duties on the cotton content appeared likely to be adopted although a vote was put off until his amendment could be perfected.

Arthur H. Walter, of 815 Fifteenth street northwest, won his freedom in Police Court yesterday on a charge of emergency control when he appeared in court with drawings and measurements of his automobile. Walter was arrested Wednesday by Policeman C. D. Cunningham, of the Traffic Bureau, when he found three girls sitting with the driver.

The acused, however, appeared in court with the measurements of his automobile, the weights of the girls, his own weight, a drawing showing how the girls were seated and other data. Judge Gus A. Schuldt, after studying the data, dismissed the case. The drawing showed that while two of the girls occupied seats on the cushion that the odd girl was sitting on the lap of the girl on the outside.

Mrs. Tripner received a fractured skull and lacerations and bruises about the face and body. Hull was thrown forward against the front of his car by the impact and his skull was crushed.

Youth Serving Prison Term Again Sentenced

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., March 13.—Garland W. Falwell, 22, of Lynchburg, who is serving two years in State Penitentiary, was brought here today from the prison at Richmond and was given an additional three months and fined $5 on charge of escaping from the city jail last month. At the suggestion of Judge F. P. Christian, the jury was discharged and the case was submitted to the court.

Suggesting that each case be submitted to him, Judge Christian said: "Unless you gentlemen are afraid, this case can be greatly shortened by waiving jury trial. I am not afraid of public clamor." He referred to Falwell as "a spoiled boy." Falwell was originally convicted of a charge of maliciously shooting Gus B. Wiltshire, of Martinsburg, W. Va., a student at Washington and Lee University.

PATROLMAN TELLS OF ROADSIDE FIGHT

OTHERS IDENTIFY WOMAN

Newcastle, Pa., March 13 (A.P.).—A slim, pale highway patrolman still bearing evidence of wounds, testifying late today at the trial of Irene Schroeder, accused "trigger woman," related details of a fatal encounter with a woman and two men, suspected robbers, along a highway near here last December 27. In the encounter another patrolman, Corpl. Brady Paul, was shot and killed. Mrs. Schroeder is accused of his murder.

Private Ernest Moore, the last witness summoned today by the Commonwealth, testified that he and Paul, a corporal of the patrol, were sent out to watch for bandits who held up a Butler store. They stopped a small sedan occupied by a woman, two men and a child.

The driver, he said was Glenn Dague, indicted also for the killing of Corpl. Paul. The woman in the car was Mrs. Schroeder, Mr. Moore said.

Woman Points Gun.

Corpl. Paul asked the driver for his license, the witness related, and was handed a wallet. As Corpl. Paul instructed the man at the wheel to take the card out of the pocketbook, Mr. Moore went to the rear of the machine to view the plates. The woman then pointed a gun at Corpl. Paul and told him to hold up his hands, the witness said. As Mr. Moore started around the machine on the opposite side from Corpl. Paul a man in the rear seat started firing at him, and a bullet struck him on the nose.

Several more shots were fired through the windshield by the man, Moore said, and he himself crouched down and then raised himself up, to be shot at each time he dodged up and down.

As he finally took aim at the man in the front seat, Moore said he was shot in the head. The next thing he knew was when some one was helping him into an automobile.

Two Identify Woman.

Earlier in the day, the defendant and Dague were identified by Wish Angert, manager of a chain store at Butler, as the pair that held up his place on the morning of December 27. Mrs. Emma Green, of Butler, testified the robbers' automobile bore Ohio license plates and a hotel clerk said he "believed" Mrs. Schroeder stayed at his hotel the night before the robbery.

Charles J. Margiotti, special prosecutor, said today the Commonwealth would not be able to complete its case by the end of the present week.

Jury in Danville Auto Death Fails to Agree

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., March 13.—The jury trying Robert Douthat, prominent Danville youth charged with involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of Vernon Black, 8-year-old child, in a motor accident, failed to agree this evening in the corporation court and was discharged after deliberating for two hours.

The case will be tried again in May. The day's session was consumed by a view of the scene of the accident, instructions and arguments. The State held Douthat was intoxicated while driving a car that killed the child. Douthat denied he was driving or that he was intoxicated.

Cadet Freed of Blame In Fatal Auto Mishap

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., March 13.—The death of Charles Higgs, 55, who was struck by an automobile here last Sunday, was held an unavoidable accident here today by Coroner K. C. Moore. Henry M. Stewart, 18, cadet adjutant at Staunton Military Academy, the driver of the car, was absolved from any blame.

Testimony showed that Mr. Higgs stepped off the sidewalk into the path of the approaching car. He died fifteen hours later from concussion of the brain, after first appearing not seriously hurt.

SECRETARY OF NAVY FLAYS TARIFF PROTECTIONISTS

myself belong to the former class. I am a tariff thief, and I have a license to steal. It bears the broad seal of the United States. I stole under it yesterday. I am stealing under it today. I propose to steal under it tomorrow. The Government has forced me into this position, and I both do and shall take full advantage of it. I am therefore a tariff thief with a license to steal. And what are you going to do about it?

"The other class comes under the hog category—that is, they rush squealing and struggling to the great Washington Protection trough and with all four feet in it, they proceed to gobble the swill. Well acquainted with those of this class, you know their attitude and their utterances. It is useless for me to dilate upon either. To this class I do not belong. I am simply a tariff thief, but, as I have said, with a license to steal.

"But, on the other hand, I am a tariff reformer. I would like to see every protective schedule swept out of existence, my own included.

"Meanwhile, what inducement have I to go to Washington on a public mission of this sort? A mere citizen, I represent no one. If I went I would receive from the committee scarcely a respectful hearing—if any hearing at all. My position in these respects is exactly the position of myriads of others. And they say we do not exist.

"Meanwhile, I do know this: On every occasion when of late I have had occasion to address an audience any reference to 'protection run' or to the tariff as the 'mother of trusts' has invariably elicited a more spontaneous response than any other utterance I could make. This feeling is abroad, becoming stronger and will certainly, soon or late, be in evidence at the polls.

"Meanwhile, the tens of thousands of persons who feel in that way, like myself, can not afford either the time or, more frequently, the money to go to Washington to ask to be heard before a committee which, they know in advance, is both prejudiced and packed against them.

"I have in this letter set forth the situation, so far as a revision of the tariff is concerned, as it exists within your personal knowledge and my personal knowledge. You are welcome to make such use of it before the committee, or elsewhere, as you see fit. I should have no objection to seeing it in print. Meanwhile, have it well understood that my position is exactly the position of tens of thousands of others scattered throughout the country."

MacDONALD'S POSITION.

Ramsay MacDonald has been granted continued lease of power by the British House of Commons.

Although the Labor government is dependent upon its opponents for support, and can be thrust out whenever the opposition cares to combine against it, the hour has not arrived for such drastic action. Mr. MacDonald is in the midst of the naval conference and has a moral right to remain in office until the conference is ended. If he had been defeated he would have had placed in his hands a powerful argument which might have brought his party a majority in the elections. "I am on the verge of consummating a treaty promoting world peace," he could have said, "and this treaty will save Britain hundreds of millions of pounds in naval construction, as well as enhancing the safety of the empire. I demand the right to go forward with this program."

The increase of unemployment under the Labor government was inevitable. It would have occurred under any government. The British economic system is badly disabled. Markets have been lost and can not be recovered until British industry reorganizes, if at all. Factory equipment is antiquated, labor is disaffected, taxes are crushing, the dominions will not cooperate in effective preferential tariffs, public opinion is split on the question of protection or "safeguarding" of British industries, and foreign competitors employing mass production methods are underselling British producers. It is a situation from which any government might shrink. The opposition finds it easy to criticize, but it is not eager to take over the responsibility of finding a remedy.

Mr. MacDonald is straining every nerve to bring about a naval agreement that will ease the burden upon Britain. He succeeded in averting a naval race with the United States by promising cruiser parity and cooperation in bringing about general reduction of naval forces. But he has not been able to reach an understanding with France. On the contrary, France has taken advantage of the opportunity offered by the conference to declare its intention to build a navy capable of defending the French coasts and colonies. French naval strength as projected, added to that of Italy, would be more than equal to British naval strength, and would thus upset the British double-power standard. British naval experts have insisted that the security of the empire depended upon maintaining a navy as strong as the combined fleets of any two continental powers.

Efforts are made to induce Italy to abandon its demand for naval parity with France. No convincing reason has been forthcoming to support this effort. Italy is deaf to the argument that France has oceanic interests and communications to defend, while Italy is confined to the Mediterranean. The Italian government is apprehensive of trouble in the Adriatic, where France is interested on the side of Italy's potential enemy. While Italy is not in a position to build up a fleet equal to the projected French fleet, it certainly will not sign any agreement forbidding it to build up to parity.

Mr. MacDonald doubtless will redouble his energies in the naval conference. But he has no valuable concessions to offer. He can not accept the French program, nor can he compel Italy to abandon its position. Apparently the best that can be obtained from the conference is a postponement of battleship replacement, which will give Britain a chance to breathe. Mr. MacDonald could have obtained this agreement without calling the conference, and the deadlock between France and Italy could have been avoided. But the enlarged French program would have confronted him, with the alternative of increasing British naval strength or accepting an impaired position vis-a-vis the continent and the Mediterranean.

The difficulties confronting Great Britain are too complicated for Mr. MacDonald to surmount. Perhaps no one could surmount them. In dealing with other nations, however, Mr. MacDonald has actually lost ground. He has stirred up unnecessary troubles and intensified national rivalries. His impulsive attempt to lead the world in statesmanship is a fiasco.

ADMIRAL BYRD'S WELCOME.

Col. Lindbergh returned from Paris on the cruiser Memphis and landed at Washington, to be received by the President, representing the American people. A similar reception should be tendered to Admiral Byrd, whose achievements have been inscribed indelibly in the golden book of American adventure. Admiral Byrd is resting at present in the Port of Dunedin. In a few days he will set sail in his ship, the City of New York, bound by way of the Panama Canal to the United States. It would be appropriate if he were to set foot on American soil in the State of his birth, Virginia. It would be fitting if he were to receive the Nation's greeting through the President, before he is claimed for the round of receptions planned by municipalities and organizations.

A committee of Virginians has forwarded a resolution to Gov. Pollard, requesting him to invite Admiral Byrd and his party to land at Norfolk and to suggest to the President that a convoy of naval vessels be dispatched to meet the City of New York and escort her to port. Reciting the achievements of Admiral Byrd, the resolution suggests that his homecoming be made a State holiday and it calls upon Virginians to send personal messages to Admiral Byrd requesting him to accept the invitation to land on Virginia soil when he returns to the United States.

The American people would be delighted to see Admiral Byrd welcomed at Washington by the President, with honors similar to those bestowed upon Col. Lindbergh.

A BIT OF HISTORY.

The Senate "liberals" who opposed the confirmation of Charles Evans Hughes to be Chief Justice of the United States made a veiled attack upon his predecessor, the late William Howard Taft. Mr. Hughes, they said, would side with the so-called conservative group on the Supreme Court bench, as did Mr. Taft. The five-to-four decisions that were so frequent of recent years would be continued. The opposition to Mr. Hughes marked a public expression of the opposition to Mr. Taft that had smoldered in the breasts of Senate "liberals" for years.

Mr. Taft may have been a conservative. He was not a reactionary. He stood four square against attempts to destroy the foundations of the Government as laid in the Constitution, but he was ready, when circumstances warranted, to throw his influence and strength behind honest reforms. Take, for example, the matter of campaign fund publicity.

The necessity for compelling political organizations to make public the sources of their campaign funds and the purposes for which they were expended was long apparent, but it was difficult to obtain legislative action to this end. In 1908, William Jennings Bryan, Democratic candidate for President, dispatched a telegram to Secretary of War Taft, Republican presidential nominee, suggesting that the two candidates join in asking Congress to pass a bill requiring publication of campaign contributions. Mr. Taft's reply, as recorded in Perry Belmont's volume on the subject, was as follows:

> Your telegram received. On April 30 last I sent the following letter to Senator Burrows, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections of the Senate:
> "My Dear Mr. Burrows: I sincerely believe that it would greatly tend to the absence of corruption in politics if the expenditures for nomination and election of all candidates and all contributions received and expenditures made by political committees could be made public, both in respect to State and national politics. For that reason I am strongly in favor of the passage of the bill which is now pending in the Senate and House bringing about this result, so far as national politics is concerned. I mark this letter personal because I am anxious to avoid assuming an attitude in the campaign which it is quite possible I shall never have the right to assume, but so far as my personal influence is concerned I am anxious to give it for the passage of the bill. Very sincerely yours,
> Since writing the above, in answer to inquiry, I have said publicly that I hope such a bill would pass.

Mr. Taft's support played no small part in influencing Congress to enact the publicity measure. It has since been the particular pet of the so-called liberal element—the crowd that lately criticized Chief Justice Taft for his "conservative" tendencies.

MORE WOMEN THAN MEN.

Ever since the Pilgrims landed on the eastern seaboard America has been known as a masculine country because of its preponderance of men. The ratio of men and women is still in favor of the former, except in certain localities, chief of which is the District of Columbia. This creates the interesting spectacle of a masculine nation—if that term may be used to designate the greater number of males—with an effeminate capital.

Dr. Joseph A. Hill, acting director of the Census Bureau, points out that in 1920 there were 104 men to every 100 women in the United States. This means only that America is an inviting land for immigrants. Since men are far more migratory than women the ratio of the sexes varies according to immigration. The unusual influx of foreigners during the decade that ended in 1910 brought the ratio for that year up to 106 women for every 100 men. The current ratio is an interesting question to be settled in the forthcoming census.

Washington is the outstanding deviation from the general rule. Its women population is relatively greater than that of any other American city of more than 100,000 inhabitants. The last census accounted for only 87 men for every 100 women, and there seems to be no reason to believe that the status of the city has changed.

The reason for this condition is obvious. Washington offers employment that is attractive to women. Nearly 40 per cent of all Government employes in the District are women, while less than 11 per cent of the Government workers outside of Washington are of the gentle sex. Modern division of labor has given Akron, Ohio, 140 men for every 100 women and other industrial centers have suffered a similar fate. Nevada, where pioneering is still going on, has almost 50 per cent more men than women. Wyoming and some other States still have enough frontier country to give them preponderantly masculine populations. But Washington is far from the frontier and its demand for industrial workers is not great. It is quite likely that the Capital will continue to be the country's most favored mecca for women.

ITALY FREES EXCHANGE.

The Italian government has issued a decree reestablishing freedom of exchange. It has the effect of removing the embargo on exportation of capital, and it brings to an end the financial restrictions imposed upon the Italian people as a result of the war.

To Italians living in the United States the decree is especially important because it will allow those having savings in Italian banks to withdraw them, if they choose, and bring them to this country. The free flow of capital both to and from Italy will remove many inconveniences of international exchange.

The chief significance of this decree, however, is that it marks the definite stabilization of the lira. By consistent and conservative measures the Mussolini government has built up the financial structure of Italy so that it is no longer necessary to prohibit the exportation of capital to assure stability of its currency. It is a great achievement, signifying the self-denial and unity of the Italian government and people.

WHERE PIRATES ONCE RULED

From the Paris Herald.

Almost exactly 126 years to a day after Decatur's courageous feat in sinking the captured Philadelphia in Tripoli Harbor, an exposition described as the first international fair of Africa was inaugurated within sight of the spot where the ill-fated American warship once lay. The fair is under the patronage of Mussolini.

It is a far cry from the day when Decatur and his American comrades battled the Barbary pirates of the North African city to that day when the historic old port announced the opening of displays to which nearly all sections of Africa and many European countries have contributed. Tripoli is no longer a stronghold of sea marauders, preying on European and American commerce, but the flourishing capital of Italy's principal colonial possession, a city in which manifestations of Oriental witchery are interspersed with signs of modern economic exploitation.

The fair was given an international status this winter after three years of existence as a local display. Serving as it does as a meeting place of contrasting peoples and civilizations, the Tripolitan exposition promises to become as famous for color and atmosphere as was the fair at Nijni-Novgorod on the Volga before the war.

Tripoli's first international fair, it is interesting to note, is contemporary with the celebration of the centenary of French rule in Algeria, a celebration which will culminate in the visit of President Doumergue in May. Italy hopes to imitate in Libya, of which Tripoli is the capital, the success obtained by France in her North African colonies, and it is no secret that Italian officials in Libya are well grounded in French colonial methods.

While France has been in Algeria since 1830, Italy began to exercise sovereignty in Libya only at the end of the Italo-Turkish War of 1911. The southern desert sections of the province have been in Arab insurrectionist hands over a long period, and it is only within recent weeks that Italian military successes in this desert area have promised an end of native rebellion.

The pacification of the province is preparatory to the Italian government's plans to make of Libya an attractive outlet for the continental peninsula's overflowing population. The Tripolitan fair is but a step in the campaign to attract interest in the colony. Mr. Di Bono, minister of colonies, predicted recently that within less than fifteen years 300,000 Italian peasants would be established in Libya.

Tripoli began to experience periodic waves of conquerors many centuries before Christ. Phoenicians had for long maintained trading cities along the coast when in the fifth century B. C. Carthage extended her sway over the area. When Carthage fell, Numidian kings exercised a nominal control over the territory for a period. The Romans first came in response to a request for deliverance on the part of the city of Leptis, and the Roman rule spread and was maintained until the end of the fourth century A. D. Roman ruins are still some of the most interesting sights of the Tripolitan area.

There was a brief span of Byzantine supremacy, and then the Arabs came to lay waste the land. The Arab domination lasted for nearly 900 years.

The Turks held sway in the city and surrounding territory from 1550 until 1711, when Tripoli became independent. Various European powers, as well as the United States, led expeditions against the piratical bands of Tripoli during the next succeeding years. The city and province were ceded to the Porte in 1853 and the second period of Turkish domination continued until Italy obtained sovereignty over the area at the end of the Italo-Turkish War of 1911.

TUT'S CURSE.

The survival of superstition in the human mind has not been more strikingly revealed in recent years than by the suicide of Lord Westbury, says the Chicago Tribune. The rumor of the Egyptian curse which was destroying every one connected with the disinterment of Tut-ankh-amen had reached even this ultima Thule in advance of Mr. Steele's interesting report of casualties. Perhaps in Chicago, where every citizen is supposed, on returning home, to comb the bullets out of his hair—as once the valorous English general had the bullets removed from his wig after every engagement—Tut's curse might not be expected to give the thrill it does in law-abiding Britain. But a curse coming down from the mysterious past is more romantic and more moving to the imagination than a mere bullet from the neighborly environment of our gangland.

To the prosaic and skeptic mind there are defects in this terror. The relation between some of the victims and the offense for which the curse is imposed is rather remote. Lord Westbury had no part in the blasphemy, whereas Mr. Howard Carter, who was the chief offender, the discoverer and despoiler of the tomb, was, at our latest personal observation, in a condition of almost scandalous good health and spirits. As to Mr. Carter it may be urged that the indignant pharaoh is reserving him for a final climacteric tragedy.

At any rate, we suggest that all of us who are a little depressed when we see the new moon over the left shoulder, or hasten to get rid of a $2 bill, or refuse to walk under a ladder or step on a crack, &c., enjoy the Tut curse without too much critical superiority. It's a good curse, a royal curse, and a better mystery than can be purchased for $2.50 or less in the book shops.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

AT A FLORIDA DRESSING STATION.

When you are dallying with the rich
Down in a tropic clime,
You dress for breakfast, after which
There comes your golfing time.
So at the club with other men
You must undress and dress again.

At noon you strip to take your shower
Your flannels then you don,
But you undress within the hour
And a bathing suit put on,
And when your ocean dip is o'er
You must undress and dress once more.

The garb you wear at eight o'clock
You must not wear at three;
'Twould give the millionaires a shock
That same old suit to see.
So up you go to change your duds,
Your shoes and socks and shirt and studs.

Floridians say there's much to see;
That trees are all in bloom;
But you've no time for scenery,
You're in your dressing room
Unbuttoning and buttoning up
From breakfast till the hour you sup.

But when the restful night slips down
You speak a grateful prayer
And don the good old slumber gown—
The garb you longest wear,
And as you jump in bed, you say:
"Here ends the dressing for the day!"

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE difference between work and play is in the point of view.

Fishing and hunting are play to the modern because they afford him escape from routine, but the ancient who fished with a bone hook or hunted with a spear was driven by hard necessity and found no more pleasure in the business than a modern finds in bricklaying.

It isn't the degree of effort that matters, but the motive that prompts it and the state of mind it develops.

Men who profess to know are agreed that fatigue is caused by an accumulation of poisons.

As the fires under a ship's boilers accumulate more ash as they are required to develop more power, so the body driven to unusual exertion accumulates poisonous waste.

The sweat glands are the grates that sift the ashes of effort, and they are quick to multiply their efficiency when bodily exertion requires it; but waste accumulates in spite of them and the result is weariness.

The damage is temporary, of course, and a night's sleep will repair it; but the mind also is fatigued by work, and that is a more serious matter.

It is the nature of the work, and not the work itself, that dulls the wits and deadens the spirit, and there is no relief except in change.

One of the great universities recently experimented with its students to discover whether congenial and uncongenial tasks result in the same degree of fatigue.

The experiment proved beyond question that work done in rebellion of spirit causes greater weariness than work that is enjoyed.

And there you have an explanation of the failure and the unhappiness of thousands who "live in baleful discontent."

They are tired and listless because their minds are depressed by a hateful routine that affords no zest or enthusiasm.

Life has whipped them by the simple process of giving them the wrong job.

Shallow cynics ridicule the amiable "go-getter" who calls his business a game, but a game it is if it affords him pleasure, and a game it must be if he would escape drudgery.

It isn't the weight of the chains that breaks the slave's spirit, but the fact of chains.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE BYRD EXPEDITION BROADCAST.

(As it seemed to some radio fans who listened in.)

Meenan—Can you put Dunedin through now? How are you?

Voice from Dunedin—It is ten after eleven. Hello. How are you feeling?

Meenan—Will you ask Commander Byrd to take over the microphone now? Mr. Ochs will talk with him.

Admiral Byrd—Hello. Can you hear me?

Mr. Ochs—It is certainly wonderful to hear the sound of your voice, Commander. How are you?

Admiral Byrd—I'm pretty well. How are you, Mr. Ochs?

Mr. Ochs—Yes, it is about 8 a. m. here. I can hear everything you are saying.

Admiral Byrd—Hello. It's lovely weather here, too.

Mr. Ochs—It is my privilege to welcome you back to civilization. You have made the world smaller by increasing our knowledge of it and man's triumph over the barriers of nature. You have added an empire to the * * * Admiral Byrd—I'm fine, thanks. How are you? You are coming over perfectly.

Mr. Ochs—Ahem. I say, we are very proud to welcome you back to civilization. It is to hear your voice that millions have arisen this morning. Ladies and gentlemen of the unseen audience, Admiral Richard Byrd will now speak to you from Dunedin, 10,000 miles away from * * * Voice—I can hear you very distinctly, every word of it. This is Russell Owen. How are you, Mr. Sulzberger?

Voice—How are you?

Russell Owen—Fine and dandy! How are you?

Voice—We hear you have taken off 40 pounds.

Russell Owen—Ha! Ha! Ha! How are you feeling?

Voice—It's nice to hear your voice again. What time is it?

Voice—This is Byrd speaking. Thank you very much. What you have just said has touched me very much.

Voice—Hello, Dick, old top. This is Emanuel Cohen, editor of Paramount News, speaking. Cohen, you know * * * Cohen on the telephone. How are you?

Admiral Byrd—Just great. I wish I could tell you what a treat it is to hear your voice.

Voice—Hello Russ! You're the same old Russ, I see. Don't forget about Lake George this summer. Canoeing an' everything.

Bring your ukulele. How are you?

Mr. Meenan—How are you?

Mr. Owen—How are you?

Admiral Byrd—How are you?

Mr. Ochs—How are you?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Now Up to Gen. Atterbury to Abolish Prohibition on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Reading recently in the daily press a ringing denunciation of the prohibition acts which have contributed nothing to the prosperity of the standard railroad of the world, uttered by one of its high officials, it now only remains for the presiding officer of that great system to abrogate all regulations governing the use of intoxicants by the employes of his company and to provide free beer and whisky for those men at any time, as well as for all patrons of the line, thus carrying his astonishing preaching into equally absurd practice.

How come, general, how come?

JOHN CONWAY.

Pittsburgh, March 12.

Explains Two Polar Stars, Polaris and Sigma, the Latter Little Known.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Most of us have heard of the North Star. It is Polaris, in the constellation Ursa Minor and a yellowish sun of about second magnitude brightness. The "pointers" in the Dipper, Merak and Dubhe, point in its direction. Of course Polaris is a northern star, fixed within its firmamental place.

Fewer of us have heard of the Southern Pole Star. That star is named Sigma, in the constellation Octans. Sigma exhibits about sixth magnitude brightness. Gamma and Alpha of the Southern Cross do not point so closely in its direction as Merak and Dubhe point in the direction of Polaris. Sigma of Octans is almost invisible to unassisted eyesight, and invisible to those who dwell in these northern latitudes. Its constellation is inconspicuous and was formerly called Octans Hadleianus. Octans received its name from the octant invented by John Hadley in 1730. The Southern Pole Star, Sigma of Octans, is about three-fourths of a degree away from the southern firmamental pole.

What!—Columbus a Pirate? Ulloa Says So, But Hortensia H. Thinks Otherwise.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Was Christopher Columbus merely a pirate, who visited America, probably at Florida, long before the traditional date of 1492? The question is raised by one Luis Ulloa, a Peruvian engineer and historian, now in Madrid.

Ulloa has been engaged in his historical researches for nearly 40 years. He claims to have in his possession documentary evidence to prove that Columbus made the crossing before he went to Queen Isabella with his plea for money. At the May session of the International Historical Congress at Seville Ulloa will submit a thesis based on his long study of the subject and upon material discovered in a castle at Simancas, near Valladolid.

It is unlikely that Ulloa's iconoclastic thesis, when presented, will materially affect public belief that Columbus was the trail blazer to the New World. Nor have plans been dropped by those who seek to erect, by popular subscription, a great lighthouse at Santo Domingo in honor of Christopher Columbus, discoverer of America. HORTENSIA H.

Poor Economy That Permits Buildings to Be Discolored by Soot.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Health Officer Fowler and his staff deserve the gratitude of every good housekeeper in Washington for their efficient and fearless public service in indiscriminately enforcing the anti-smoke laws.

If Uncle Sam has not the necessary equipment to prevent smoke from emanating from the Capitol, by all means let him get it. It is surely grotesque for the Government to appropriate millions of dollars to put up magnificent white structures and then begrime them with soot for lack of a few hundreds for proper fuel and firing. Every taxpayer ought to protest against the stupidity of such poor economy. AMY MORRISON.

Recall All Admirals, Says the Pacifist of Pacific Grove.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Great was the satisfaction of the world's public when American President and British premier agreed to arrange for a real disarmament conference in London. Diminution of its tax roll and death toll seemed in sight.

But hearts and hopes suffered blight when it was announced that admirals were to be much in evidence as "advisers" to the statesmen delegated to represent the various nations invited. It seemed most unlikely that these advisers would voluntarily perform professional hari-kari by reducing the fleet of fightinig ships, and therewith their own emoluments. That would not seem to them good business. Moreover, as the cobbler thinks there's "nothing like leather," so the admiral deems there's nothing like a big navy, second to none in the sea. To them it made no matter that every nation had solemnly sworn at Paris never to engage in aggressive war. To them statesmanship is far less trustworthy than seamanship!

So it proved that instead of the statesmen delegates advising—nay ordering—the admiralties and admirals, as would seem the proper relation, the reverse has ruled and the time seems so far wasted over chaffering and dickering as to what constitutes "parity" and due proportion; and repetition of Geneva's failure seems imminent.

So let all the admirals be recalled and the statesmen directed to perform their mission to accomplish mutual DIS-armament. Don't have the conference fizzle out in futile fuss and fatal fiasco.

U. S. CHIEFS IN HAITI DEFEND THEIR WORK

Five Officials Deny Charges Made Against Them to Commission.

HEARING VIRTUALLY END

Port-au-Prince, March 13 (A.P.).—Five American officials of the United States occupation in Haiti today gave the Hoover commission reports of their work and denied charges made against them in hearings last week.

With their testimony the hearings are virtually ended. The commission hopes to concentrate its remaining time in scanning written reports and in clearing up the troubled political situation.

This was the first time the American officials have had a chance to tell their side. Four spoke publicly—Sidney de Larue, financial adviser and general receiver; Commander G. A. Duncan, director of public works; Col. Frank Evans, commandant of the Garde d'Haiti, and Dr. K. C. Melhorn, director of the Service d'Hygiene.

The fifth witness, Dr. George F. Freeman, director of the much attacked Service Technique, the vocational training school which was the center of a student strike months ago, requested a private hearing.

Financial Regime Defended.

Mr. Larue defended the financial regime, which many Haitians have praised. He said the per capita tax had been increased only 20 cents since 1924 and that the public debt per capita had been cut from 60 to 44 gourdes (a gourde is 20 cents) and that the internal revenue had been developed until it was now half the revenue of the government.

He said that his department had brought order out of financial chaos since 1915, when the occupation began, and denied the charges that the people do not know what had been going on in his office, saying that all of his records are public.

Mr. Larue charged that when the United States left the revenues would again go into the pockets of the elite and that the other classes would suffer.

Col. Evans recommended a law providing transfer of control of the garde to Haitians as soon as possible and added that the law should prevent any possibility of trained Haitian officers being replaced by political appointees. Col. Evans, who is leaving that command in April to return to the United States and is well liked in Haiti, shares the opinion of many Haitian officers that a small military mission should be left in an advisory capacity after the withdrawal of the marines.

Borno More Conciliatory.

After a conference with President Louis Borno late today the commission announced the president had become more conciliatory in his attitude toward their plan for a provisional government and legislative elections in Haiti.

The commissioners expressed the belief that the political crisis threatened by his sudden opposition to the plan last week-end has been averted. He is still holding out, however, against the holding of legislative elections this spring.

The commissioners explained they had not yet found it necessary to use coercion in obtaining the president's approval. The whole difficulty was precipitated while they were on their inland tour, in that the president, after having apparently consented to the plan, issued orders to the prefects that legislative elections would not be held before 1932.

He still kept to this stand today in talking to the commissioners. He told them their plan to turn the government over to the suffrage of the people was "a great shock" to him, but he was "a sport" and was willing to reaffirm his adherence to it.

North Carolinians Urged on Hoover

Delegation Suggests Two Names as Successor to Sanford.

President Hoover yesterday had the matter of a selection of the successor to the late Edward Terry Sanford, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, who died last Saturday, placed before him when Senator Lee S. Overman (Democrat), North Carolina, called and urged the appointment of a North Carolinian.

Two names were placed before the President by Senator Overman, who was accompanied to the White House by a large delegation of North Carolina Democrats. They were:

Walter P. Stacey, chief justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court, a Democrat, and United States Circuit Court Judge John J. Parker, of Charlotte, N. C., a Republican.

Women Ministers on Par With Men Council's Aim

Amarillo, Tex., March 13 (A.P.).—The Council of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Southern Methodist Church today adopted a resolution to petition the general conference of the church in Dallas next May to permit women to be ordained for the ministry on an equality with men.

King Allows Contesting of Fines.

Madrid, March 13 (A.P.).—King Alfonso today signed a royal decree making it possible for persons who were fined for opposition to the Primo de Rivera dictatorship to bring civil suits if the fines are considered illegal. Many such fines were levied during the dictatorship, among the largest being that of 500,000 pesetas against Count Romanones, and 100,000 pesetas against Gen. Valeriano Weyler, Cuban war veteran, who has been seriously ill.

Indict Man and Woman On Charge of Extortion

Los Angeles, March 13 (A.P.).—Morris Lavine, newspaper reporter, and Miss Leontine Johnson, secretary, were charged with extortion here today in an indictment returned by the county grand jury which has been investigating charges that the two attempted to get $300,000 from Los Angeles bankers.

Seamen's Strike Holds Liner Paris in Havre

Havre, France, March 13 (A.P.).—The Transatlantic Co. announced today that no attempt would be made to get the steamship Paris off for New York tonight, because the strike of seamen is continuing.

The New York passengers have disembarked and will return to Paris.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

It is Republican necks which are in danger from the turn of the prohibition wheel this fall, just as it was Democratic necks which suffered in the Alfred E. Smith debacle. One does not hear this from the political tirades on Capitol Hill. It is not a safe thing for a politician to talk about. But in the cloakrooms there is plenty of it.

Both parties, of course, are split wide open on the wet and dry issue—and always have been. The marvelous success of the Antisaloon League was that it played no party games—nationally, though in each State it sought domination of the party which had the best chance of controlling the State government. Thus in the South it became almost a Democratic institution, with leaders like Bishop Cannon and Dr. Barton. In Ohio it played the Republican game, and in New York it paid no attention to the Democratic party, regarding that as hopeless because of Tammany, but fought to control the Republican party. Hence the election of Senator Wagner and the defeat of Senator Wadsworth.

* * * *

But the division of the two parties, while it may be equally great, is not similar. The Democratic Party is divided sectionally by the prohibition issue. The South is dry, and the Northeast is wet. The Republican Party has no such division. It is part wet and part dry in practically every congressional district where it has any appreciable strength at all.

Leaving the religious issue to one side, the Republicans lost tens of thousands of votes in New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut in the 1928 presidential election because of the wet appeal of Smith. Similarly Smith lost thousands of votes in the dry Democratic South because he was wet. Hoover had by far the best of the exchange because, still leaving the religious issue to one side, many thousands of wet Republicans voted for him in spite of Smith's wet appeal. Half a dozen outstanding Republican newspapers were preaching the doctrine that to vote for Hoover was the real way to solve the issue as the wets wanted it solved.

But this year the issue is being injected in the individual congressional fights, and as a result the Democrats, able to play the wet game in districts that appear likely this year to go wet, and the dry game where it is obviously the wise course to take that side, have as great an advantage as the Republicans did two years ago.

For example, they expect to work the same tactics and have started the ball rolling in at least three additional Massachusetts districts that won the special election for them in the second district, which so shocked the Republicans. The death of Representative Glynn, in Connecticut, may produce a special election ahead of time there, and they are highly hopeful that it will result in the same way. For publication, of course, the Democratic leaders are placing all the emphasis on the "anti-Hoovers" or "hard times" issue. Privately they believe that prohibition had a lot to do with it.

YOUNG PLAN SIGNED BY VON HINDENBURG

German President Appeals for Cooperation in War Debts Payment.

U. S. PACT IS APPROVED

Berlin, March 13 (A.P.).—President Paul von Hindenburg, Germany's venerable president and great wartime general, today signed the bills approving the Young reparations plan, already passed by the Reichstag and the Reicharat. A few hours later he signed the separate German-American reparations agreement.

Thus in one day's work he took the final steps necessary for Germany to set in motion the machinery for her payments to the allies on her indebtedness arising out of the World War.

An urgency clause made the Young plan immediately effective as far as Germany is concerned.

President Appeals to People.

Immediately after signing it, he issued a statement saying, "With heavy but stanch heart, and after mature and conscientious examination, I have set my signature under the Young plan laws."

The president concluded with the following appeal:

"I appeal to all Germans to clasp hands, irrespective of parties, for cooperation in the common task. Almost 60 years ago when the Reich was founded, I was one of those who experienced the joy which filled every German breast at the final achievement of unity. I can not think this spirit has disappeared and has given place to continuous inner political disunion. Despite, and on account of the exigencies of the times, it behooves us to come to ourselves and to reunite in one thought—Deutchland uber alles."

Up to the last minute he was besieged by urgent appeals not to sign the plan from his former followers, many of them his trusted officers during the war and others his vigorous supporters in the presidential campaign.

German-U. S. Pact Approved.

The German-American debt liquidation agreement, separately concluded by the United States and Germany on December 28, 1929, was also approved. It provides that the German annuities to the United States be paid directly instead of through the Bank for International Settlements, which will handle the annuities to the other allied nations.

A whole series of liquidation agreements that came up at the same time as the German-American settlement was held up. The agreements, including the British, Canadian and Polish ones, will be studied by the president to see whether they involve a constitutional amendment. The president's legal advisers, who have said that they do not involve such an amendment, have been summoned to meet on Monday and will probably maintain their opinion.

In that case President von Hindenburg, having formally satisfied himself about their character, will be in a position to sign them.

Rev. Charles Clingman Elected State Bishop

Baton Rouge, La., March 13 (A.P.).—The Rev. Charles Clingman, rector of the Church of the Advent, Birmingham, Ala., today was elected Episcopal Bishop of Louisiana by vote of the clergy and laymen of the diocesan council.

Geraldine Farrar, Ill, Goes On With Her Tour

Macon, Ga., March 13 (A.P.).—Geraldine Farrar, opera star who suffered an attack of ptomaine poisoning at her hotel here yesterday, was sufficiently recovered today to continue her tour, her manager said.

Mexican Slain in Duel; Police Seek Opponent

Mexico City, March 13 (A.P.).—To settle personal differences, the nature of which has not been disclosed, J. Carmen Uribe and Marcelino Ramos locked themselves in a darkened room and fought a blind duel with short swords.

Uribe was killed. Ramos is being sought by the police.

MONARCHY IS VITAL TO SPAIN, SAYS DUKE

ELECTION IS FORECAST

Madrid, March 13 (A.P.).—Spain's minister of state believes that republicanism does not present a serious prospect for realization in his country, and that the monarchy is deeply rooted in the real heart of Spain.

The Duke of Alba so expressed himself today in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press.

He believes, too, that the prospect for tranquillity in Spain is such that the present government adhers to its determination to hold general elections as soon as possible, restoring the parliamentary government which the Primo de Rivera dictatorship abandoned.

Elections Due in Time.

"But time is required to do this," he added. "We can not work magic. Suppose that for six years in the United States all political parties, organizations and electoral machinery had been suppressed or nonfunctioning.

"You are the most practical people on earth for doing things, but could you—or any country—organize elections overnight under such conditions? Of course not. We are going our best, and elections and restoration of Parliament will come in due time. Parliament will then decide what government shall succeed."

Then the duke referred to recent agitation for a republican government following the end of the dictatorship.

Monarchy Means Order.

"Spain can not live without order," he said, "and the monarchy means order. The heart of Spain is unchanged on this question; it is overwhelmingly for its king. More than 800 years' service by my family to the monarchy and my devotion to King Alfonso is why I am a monarchist. It is natural that the republicans, their utterance suppressed for six years, should have talked freely when the opportunity came. Youth everywhere must vent itself in a certain amount of revolt. That is superficial. The important fundamental is that Spain's deep-rooted monarchical traditions remain unshaken.

"It is curious, this conviction foreign countries seem to have had that disorders were inevitable in Spain in connection with a change of government. We are exceedingly proud that Spain was able to effect such a change of government with astonishingly little disturbance, and that of minor nature.

"As you know, we have removed the foreign press censorship. We only ask each correspondent to be personally responsible for the truth; all we want is that the world have the facts."

body, however, was difficult and involved enormous and intricate computations.

"In 1914 he announced as the result of his calculations the possibility and distance of the predicted body in a large memoir, a Lowell Observatory publication.

Photographed Since 1905.

"The search of the skies directed by Dr. Lowell's theoretical work was begun by photography in 1905 and has been continued to the present time. The use was made of the best available instruments, the search covering that band of the skies in which the known planet traveled.

"Early last year, the Lawrence-Lowell telescope, a highly efficient special instrument for the search, was put in operation. Some weeks ago (January 21) Mr. C. W. Tombaugh detected an object on a plate made with the telescope which has since been followed carefully here.

"It has been observed photographically with the large Lowell reflector by C. O. Lampland and it has been observed visually with the larger refractor by the various members of the staff.

"All observations indicate the object to be the one which Lowell saw mathematically."

"Welcome" by Capital.

A welcome for "the new member of our celestial family" issued from the United States Naval Observatory last night as astronomers there prepared to try and find the new world for themselves.

Capt. C. S. Freeman, in charge of the observatory, said he believed the new orb could be discovered from Washington only with the greatest difficulty.

"The planet," he explained, "is on the edge of visibility of the largest of the observatory's telescopes and the slightest haze or overbrightness or glare from moonlight may defer the actual picking up of the object here."

He added that the discovery of what was believed to be a new transneptunian planet was a source of considerable satisfaction throughout the astronomical world, since its presence would help explain certain deviations in the calculated motion of Neptune—previously the most distant point of the known solar system.

Lake Diversion Case Up Again

Supreme Court Once More Will Pass on Old Chicago Fight.

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court is once more to pass on the controversy between the Great Lake States and the Chicago sanitary district over the diversion of water from Lake Michigan.

Counsel yesterday concluded oral arguments based on the report of Charles E. Hughes, as special master, which recommended to the court plans for decreasing the diversion and for sewage disposal by other means than diluting it by the use of lake water. Mr. Hughes, now Chief Justice, will not participate in the case.

The Chicago sanitary district had as counsel John W. Davis, James M. Beck, representative from Pennsylvania and former Solicitor General, who prosecuted the Government case against the district, and Edmond D. Adcock. The oral argument of the Great Lake States was presented by Raymond T. Jackson, assistant attorney general of Wisconsin; Attorney General Bettman, of Ohio; Attorney General Brucker, of Michigan, and Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War.

Kentucky Site Favored For First Narcotic Farm

Secretary Mellon announced yesterday that the committee composed of the Attorney General, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of War, which was designated by Congress to recommend a location for the first narcotic farm, would recommend a site near Lexington, Ky., for this purpose.

Necessary steps will be taken to submit an estimate for appropriation to present Congress looking to the purchase of the site recommended.

New Planet Is Third Found By Man in 300 Years' Study

Ancients Knew All Satellites of Sun Except Uranus, Neptune and Orb Just Discovered in Farthest Reaches of Solar System

New York, March 13 (A.P.).—Discovery of the unnamed planet far out beyond the hitherto known boundary of the solar system is the third major planet found by man in about 300 years of star study.

The ancients knew all except the last three. The first of these modern planets, Uranus, was discovered by Sir William Herschel in 1781. It is estimated at 1,782,800,000 miles from the sun.

Next came the discovery of Neptune by one of the most astonishing calculations man ever had made. Certain irregularities in the motion of the new planet Uranus troubled astronomers for years. The key to their solution was found almost simultaneously by two astronomers working independently of each other. Both said it must lie in another planet out even farther from the sun than Uranus. Both calculated correctly where a telescope could be pointed to discover it.

One of these astronomers, U. J. J. Leverrier, a Frenchman, asked the Berlin observatory to look in this spot. In 1846, on a date now believed to be September 23, a German astronomer looked but did not see the planet. However, when he compared this section of the sky with some charts showing previously observed stars, he found he had a new one. This new pin point of light proved to be the planet Neptune.

At the same time John C. Adams, an Englishman, had made similar predictions unknown to the Frenchmen, and a British telescope, turned upon the right spot in the sky on the night of August 4, the same year, had located the planet, but as in Germany, the astronomer had failed to note its presence. The Frenchman's discovery was published first.

In the discovery of new planets the first of the asteroids was found in 1801 by Piazzi. These are very small planets farther from the sun than the earth, occupying a space between Mars and Jupiter. A host of these has since been found.

The planets, beginning nearest the sun, and their diameters in miles are:

Mercury, mean distance, 36,000,000 miles; diameter, about 3,000.

Venus, 67,200,000 and about 7,500.

Earth, 92,900,000 and nearly 8,000.

Mars, 141,500,000 and about 4,200.

Jupiter, 483,300,000 and about 86,000.

Saturn, 886,100,000 and about 72,000.

Uranus, 1,782,800,000 and about 30,000.

Neptune, 2,793,500,000 and about 32,000.

Man Wounds Two; Kills Wife, Self

Tennessee Farmer Goes on Rampage When Divorce Notice Is Served.

Johnson City, Tenn., March 13 (A.P.).—A few hours after he had been served notice of divorce proceedings, Fred Range, a farmer, today shot and killed his wife, wounded his wife's sister and her husband, threatened to kill his two children and then shot himself fatally. He died two hours later in a hospital.

Range, who was 40 years old, followed his wife to the home of John Dempsey, near Jonesboro, and shot her to death in the kitchen. Then he went into the bedroom, after seriously wounding Mrs. Dempsey, proceeded to the yard and shot Dempsey.

After the shooting Range walked several miles to his own home and officers found him in the attic. "Don't shoot," he pleaded, then fired a bullet from his pistol into his head.

All of the victims were brought to a Johnson City hospital. A farm hand on Range's 70-acre place told officers that Range had said he planned to kill his two boys, Alfred, 13, and John D., 7. The boys said he had threatened them upon his return home, but that they had run and hidden from him.

Oakland, Calif., March 13 (A.P.).—Sheriff Burton F. Becker, of Alameda County, was ordered removed from office today by Superior Judge F. V. Wood when he pleaded guilty to one count of a grand jury accusation of misconduct in office. The count was "visiting bootlegging establishments socially and failing to make arrests."

There were 12 other counts in the accusation.

Aid for Opera Is Chargeable To Income Tax

Bureau Ruling Provides for Deductions by Donors.

By JEAN ELIOT.

PEOPLE who are "income-tax-minded"—and who isn't, with the deadline for 1929 returns set for tomorrow?—may be interested to know of a good way to cut down payments. The Washington Opera Association, which is sponsoring the Metropolitan Opera Company's Washington "season," set for April 23, 24 and 25, has obtained a ruling from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue that "contributions to this organization, including amounts paid by guarantors to cover losses are allowable reductions to regular income tax returns of individual donors." So why not help the opera association in its civic spirited work and cut down your income tax returns—for next year, of course?

Guarantors already enrolled for this season are the Speaker of the House, Mr. Nicholas Longworth, himself a musician and always a promotor of good music; the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Andrew W. Mellon, Countess Szechenyi, wife of the Minister of Hungary; Senator Lawrence C. Phipps, Senator Frederic Walcott, Representative James S. Parker, Representative Henry Winfield Watson, Representative Schuyler Merritt, Representative Richard S. Aldrich, Representative Robert Low Bacon, Representative Sol Bloom.

Also Mrs. Copley Amory, Princess Margaret Boncompagni, Mrs. Henry Barton, Mrs. Charles J. Bell, Mrs. James F. Curtis, Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis, Mr. William Phelps Eno, Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, Mr. Frank Jelleff, Mr. George Garrett, Mrs. David St. Pierre Gaillard, Mrs. Stokes Halkett, Mrs. Christian Heurich, Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, Mr. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Keith Merrill, Mr. Leander McCormick-Goodhart, Mrs. George Mesta, Mr. D. J. O'Brien, Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips, jr., Mr. James Parmelee, Mrs. Armistead Peter, Mr. and Mrs. William McClellan Ritter, Mrs. Elmer Schlesinger, Mr. Thomas Sweeney and Mrs. John B. Wilkins.

Appearing at the Fox Theater, with its large seating capacity, even the costly Metropolitan Opera, the best which this country can produce, may be made to pay for itself in Washington, with the prices scaled reasonably, if the house is sold out. And upon the success of the undertaking this time depends, in all probability, whether or not the Capital is to be included in the Metropolitan's future tours.

As the novelty of the brief season "Andre Chenier" has been chosen, with Rosa Ponselle, Martinelli and De Luca. This will be presented on Thursday, April 24. The opening bill on Wednesday will be the ever delightful "La Boheme," featuring Lucrezia Bori, Gigli and Lawrence Tibbett, and another old favorite, "La Traviata," has been chosen for the matinee performance on Friday, with Bori, Tibbett and Tokatyan.

Mrs. Robert Low Bacon is chairman of the Washington Opera Association, Inc., whose purpose is to bring opera to an operaless Capital, and Mrs. George Mesta, vice chairman. The other officers are Mrs. Tracy Dows, treasurer; Mr. Andrew Wylie, secretary, and Mrs. Wilson-Greene, manager.

Besides the officers, the board of trustees includes Miss Elizabeth Butler Howry, Mrs. Charles J. Bell, Mrs. Franklin Ellis, Mrs. James F. Parker and Mrs. Lawrence Townsend.

Although the Eastern season will be very crowded, hostesses are endeavoring to arrange their parties so as to leave the opera evenings free except, perhaps, for "small and early" preopera dinners or postopera suppers.

The Woman's National Democratic Club will celebrate St. Patrick's Day at its weeklyn forum luncheon next Monday, when Sir John Joyce Broderick, Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy, will be the guest speaker.

A feature of the weekly dinner next Thursday will be an exhibition of Oriental jewelry and an address by Miss Harriet Keith Fobes. On Friday afternoon the officers and members of the board of governors of the club will receive informally from 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock. Mrs. Frank S. Bright will give an informal talk on "The League of Nations."

Mr. and Mrs. Davison Returning From Spa.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Against Early Marriage."

DEAR MISS McDONALD: Money is the cause of most marital difficulties, yet that is a fact that so many young people do not realize until it is too late. I look back upon my own early married life and it makes me tremble to think how we endangered our happiness by plunging into it headlong without considering the outcome. We were married when I was 20 and my husband 21. A year from the day of our wedding our first baby was born. I hate to go back over those first three years. We had been so confident. I had a splendid position and, like so many women, didn't see the possibility that I might give it up. I could not sacrifice the happiness of taking care of my baby just to go back to work, so we struggled along on what my husband made, and it was so little. We didn't live, we existed; we had enough to eat and a place to sleep, but that isn't living. My husband made $35 a week during all that time. We rented a small house 'way out in the suburbs. Our friends were too far from us to see us often. We couldn't afford the car fare and price of movies and the price of a woman to stay with our boy, so we stayed at home. We had some very unhappy hours, each blaming the other, but, fortunately, our love was strong enough to survive the test. Now we have two children and are buying our home. Yet I wonder if it was worth it. Not that my children are not worth it, but I feel sure that if we had waited two years and had saved our money and had something to start with, something like a home or, at least, the beginning of the payments for a home, we would have been so much happier. We are devoted to each other, but I tell you that those first two years of married life should not be marred. The romance must fade a little, no sentimentalist can truthfully say otherwise, and a girl and boy should be allowed to get every bit of joy out of that time that is possible. Those little quarrels don't seem important, but they take something from love that can not be replaced. We had $1,200 when we were married, but to furnish a two-room apartment, take the plainest kind of a wedding trip and lay a little aside for the emergency, which came only too soon, ate that up in a hurry. It is a terrible shame that young people can't be warned not to risk their beautiful happiness, but they can't be, and never will be. I scoffed at advice myself and am sorry.

WINIFRED M.

And then read Walter's sad little story, that in a few words presents tragedy for three! And yet some of us complain because our lives are dull, because the motor of the new refrigerator is not noiseless, or because that "knock" is still plainly audible in the car. Read!

Dear Miss McDonald:

My wedding day was the happiest day of my life. She was the perfect dream girl. I was 25 and she was 20 when we started out to make each other happy. She succeeded, I failed. In a year all pep and life seemed to leave her. Then she told me that poverty "did something" to her, made her hate life. Her people agreed with her, asked me to allow a divorce. It killed all spirit in me, but I would do anything for her. Well, about a year later they married her off again. That nearly killed me, for, of course, I "hoped." She used to write me always "Dearest Boy" and always "Lovingly Babe." But she married again. That was three years ago. Last winter the new husband called upon me. He said she had told him their marriage was a "terrible mistake" and she knew now that she should have stayed with me. He asked me if I was free to marry her if he gave her the freedom she seemed to crave. I was shocked. I hadn't ceased to care, but I had ceased to suffer as at first. I dreaded going in for more suffering by waging into life that old, terrible love. And I was bitter, too. I told him I hadn't any more money than before and would get the air again. He said he thought there would be no fear of that. I felt sorry for him. He was past 40 and in a worse way than I had been. He said she had practically lived at her mother's. Well, I told him I didn't relish being a football. And he said he hoped I'd "think it over."

But all I can do is think what a difference a few miserable dollars do make. All our dreams, all our love. And what did it get us? A lot of agony, that's all. WALTER.

What Today Means to You

"PISCES."

IF March 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 6 p. m. to 7:30 p. m., and from 10:45 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m., and from 4 p. m. to 5:30 p. m.

The interests of the day on this date will center around home and family to the almost entire exclusion of other interests. There will be a mixture of anxiety and happiness. Do not neglect your health as it is an adverse time for such factors.

Children born on this March 14 will be ambitious and aspiring, and they will challenge their destinies and seek large enterprises. They will have quick intellects and be hasty in speech. They will make stanch friends and bitter enemies through the positiveness of their natures.

There is much firmness in your character which makes for bold decisions and prompt actions. You grasp, very quickly and accurately, the whole scheme of things, but you are too impatient to master details. You are shown to love activity and work, but your activity should be along mental lines. You possess executive ability and are born for leadership. You are slightly inclined to believe that your way is the way, and that the world must abide by your "rule of thumb." You are very conservative in your ideas, and you must be shown before believing anything. You obstinately stick to your viewpoint and habits—you are not progressive. You are very close mouthed, but you have the faculty of getting people to speak freely—others leave you feeling that you have obtained all their confidence and given nothing in return. You are probably called "poker-faced."

You are very neat and orderly and discord and untidiness grate upon you most unpleasantly. If you be a woman you are probably a "crank" about your housekeeping—your efficiency may make you a better housekeeper than homemaker. As a child you probably pouted when things went wrong, and as a grownup, you probably have had moods. If a man, you are strong and direct in your manner and brutal in your frankness.

2. Sir Henry Bessemer, inventor.
3. Joseph P. Bradley, jurist.
4. John G. W. Cowles, financier.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Nothing is more popular than black for evening as well as daytime. This is crepe and tulle, with odd decolletage. (Courtesy of Maison Jenny, Paris.)

Paris, March 13.

BECAUSE its season commences only a short time before the summer showings of the Haute Couture, the French Riviera is becoming more and more a style try-out center, rather than a style center.

Here, if Miladi wears something that is very much the last word of the minute, and this something proves to be only a temporary success, nobody, including her most charming self, is any the worse off. Whereas, if she is lucky enough to wear something that is not only the last word of the moment but continues to echo throughout the summer, then also she is none the worse off.

Whatever becomes the accepted fashion in winter's sunny playgrounds, whether these be Algiers or Florida, the Lido or the Riviera, it matters not—in these places during the months of February and March, spring and summer have their first little fling, and the flowers of their wild oats blow themselves around the rest of the world far into September and October.

• • • •

We've tried it in all languages and as far as we got was hysteria—in all languages—and none of us succeeded in describing the lovely Jenny gown I illustrated for you today!

Because, you see, it was the back decolletage that was so interesting—and undescribable. The best I can suggest is that you look at the illustration and try to understand our exclamation point. As for the rest, the bodice is of black crepe and the skirt of cut tulle.

Coin de Coleur.

If any one color can be said to be the leading one of the mode for summer, it would be pale blue—doggone it! Because pale blue is one of those things that I, for one, can certainly live without, and I think, nay I fear, that a lot of women who are going to wear it could do the same. If you can wear pale blue, then, the thing to be is blue this summer. ('N if that telephone doesn't ring inside of a half hour, I'm going to be that for the whole summer.)

A handkerchief's a handkerchief, for a' that! But the new Dare designs are so delightfully feminine and flimsy, and the ideas for fans so whimsical you'd just better send your stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post and get the leaflet that tells you all about them.

And don't put it off nochalantly thinking you'll get around to it one of these days, maybe just the day before an awfully grand soiree. You'll wish then that you had these accessories all ready, tucked away in your handkerchief box for safe-keepsies.

AUCTION AND CONTRACT BRIDGE

MILTON C. WORK
(The World's Leading Authority.)

When leading against a No Trump from the leader's longest suit, it generally is wise to lead the fourth best card of that suit; or, in other words, the lowest card when it is a four-card suit, and the next to the lowest when it is a five-card suit. However, it occasionally happens that a suit is so strong that leading the fourth best might prove to be disadvantageous. For example, it would be foolish to lead the fourth best from King-Queen-Jack-Deuce, or Queen-Jack-Ten-Deuce. Partner might have no support and the Declarer might win the trick with a spot card and still have the Ace or Ace-King to stop the suit; so when the hand contains sufficient strength it is advisable to lead an honor.

The simplest rule for the beginner is: Lead the fourth best unless you have three honors; but even that rule is subject to exceptions. There are two combinations of three honors from which an honor should not be led; these are Ace-King-Ten and Ace-Queen-Ten. With the Ace-King-Ten at the head of a four-card or five-card suit, it is more important that the suit be established than that the high cards should be cashed, so the fourth best should be led. By losing the first trick, the remaining cards are apt to be established, and, as partner probably has two cards of the suit, the chances are that these tricks can be run when he gets in; so an entry in the leading hand is not necessary in order to make them. With Ace-Queen-Ten there is no advantage in any lead but a fourth best unless the hand contains the Nine as well as the Ten, in which case the Ten should be led.

These are the two important exceptions to the general rule, which provides that an honor should be led from a three-honor combination. When leading an honor, the higher or highest of touching cards usually is the lead to make, and this subject will be taken up next week.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Who ever heard of cooking lettuce? The Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, has among others interested in trying out new ways with familiar foods. Braised lettuce, preferably of the iceberg type, is an excellent change in the way of a green vegetable. The suggestion of bacon flavor given by using bacon fat makes the lettuce especially tasty. Here's how it's prepared:

Two large hard heads iceberg lettuce.
Salt.
Pepper.

Cut each head of lettuce into four pieces, taking care that a portion of the center stem is left on each section to hold the leaves together. Heat the fat in a large skillet, put in the lettuce, cover, and cook for 30 minutes, or until the lettuce is tender. If much liquid is drawn out of the lettuce, discard some of it during cooking. Turn carefully if necessary. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and serve on a hot platter.

SANITY IS MADE ISSUE

New York, March 13 (A.P.).—Although Abraham L. Erlanger, theater magnate, stated specifically in his will that he was unmarried, a former actress who declares she is his widow, filed through her attorney today an objection to probate of his estate, variously valued at from $10,000,000 to $75,000,000.

The objection is based on the contention that Erlanger was of unsound mind and incapable of making a will on the day the document purports to have been executed, October 18, 1917.

It also is contended that he was subjected to undue influence from Saul J. Baron, his attorney, and from his brother, Mitchell L. Erlanger, and his sisters, Miss Ray Erlanger and Mrs. Caroline Bergman, named as heirs and executors.

The document filed today by Max D. Steuer, who announced the day after Erlanger's death that he had been retained to protect the interests of "the widow," refers to his client all the way through as "Charlotte F. Erlanger." It states that "at the time of the death of the deceased Abraham L. Erlanger the contestant herein was his wife and is now the widow of the deceased."

When Mr. Steuer stated last Saturday that he had been retained by "Mrs. Erlanger," relatives of Erlanger declared, "There is no Mrs. Erlanger."

When the will was filed on Monday, the day after the funeral, it developed that Erlanger had made no mention of any wife and had specifically stated that he was unmarried. His brother and sisters were named residuary heirs. Mr. Baron, on behalf of the executors, filed a petition for probate today.

Mr. Steuer insists that "there certainly is a Mrs. Erlanger, and there is not a court in the land that will not sustain her claim."

No "Mrs. Erlanger" appeared at the funeral, in a Fifth Avenue Synagogue, Sunday. Mr. Steuer said his client was too ill to attend. "Mrs. Erlanger," he said, was Miss Charlotte Fiscal, an actress, known on the stage as Charlotte Leslie.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

ADVICE TO HOSPITALS.

We wish to renew the suggestion that hospitals operate conservatories in close proximity and that certain convalescent patients and "chronics" be encouraged to spend their waking hours therein. For certain disorders no better medicine could be provided. Incidentally, the institution would supply the flowers for the hospital.

Dr. A. L. Barach tells of having equipped his office as a health room and recommends that hospitals follow the same example. A system of closed, artificial ventilation is provided. To the circulating air from 10 to 25 per cent of fresh air is continuously added in order to remove tobacco smoke and odors. The dust, dirt and smoke are removed from the air. It is then passed over brine coils in summer and hot coils in winter and then thrown into the room. In winter the air is humidified. In summer there may be days when some drying of the air is advisable. The summer temperature of the air in the room is not set, but is maintained about 10 to 15 degrees below that of the outside air. The humidity is maintained at about 50 per cent.

Dr. Barach drew his inspiration from two sources. One was a room in the Presbyterian Hospital in New York City. The other was certain rooms used by hay fever sufferers as a means of escaping their disorder. The groups who Dr. Barach thinks would be benefited by living in rooms filled with clean air, properly heated or properly cooled, and right as to humidity, are those with hay fever, asthma, chronic bronchitis, arthritis, high blood pressure and heart disease.

Children with diarrhea should be added to the list. Occasionally an asthmatic will find that he is sensitive to some plant ordinarily grown in conservatories. Such persons should avoid the place unless the keeper will remove the offending plants either entirely or to some distant part of the room.

MAY BE RAYNAUD'S DISEASE.

P. A. writes: I am troubled all the time with cold hands and feet, which turn white first and then a bluish color when exposed to the slightest cold. Could you tell me what is the cause of this and what could be done for it?

At present I am taking rubbing treatments and have been told I have very bad circulation, the blood almost standing still in my veins. The veins are so small it is almost impossible to find them.

Is exercise about the only thing that can be done for this condition? I sit in an office practically all day long.

REPLY.

You have a mild type of Raynaud's disease. This is a disorder of the very small arteries and capillaries. When extreme, the condition is disabling or even dangerous. When mild, it causes discomfort—the kind that is commonly called poor circulation. Your case falls in between these extremes.

An operation is done now for Raynaud's disease. It has given some good results. I do not think your case is serious enough to warrant an operation. You will have to depend on exercise and such hardening as you can stand.

It is possible now to study capillaries, and we should know something of service about them before many years.

Fifth Ave. Fashions NEW YORK

Paris sets the mode for wee moderns of 1, 2, 4 and 6 years, whose clothes are given quite as much forethought as the grown-up fashions.

Thees little kiddies must be comfy to be happy. They demand dainty attractive frocks like their playmates wear, thus keeping the French couturiers ever busy thinking and planning for something new that must be practical.

The model style No. 8130 illustrated is very dainty and French with its tiny puffed sleeves. It's a favorite because of its simplicity.

The fullness falls from a diminutive round shoulder yoke. You'll be surprised to learn that the front and back yokes and the short kimono sleeves cut in one with the body of the dress. The sleeves are held close to the arm through pin tucks. Scallops made an attractive finish at edge.

It's marvelously easy to make, and takes but 1⅝ yards of 27-inch material in the 4-year size.

WEST VIRGINIA AID PLEDGED NEW UNION

REBELS PUT UNDER FIRE

Springfield, Ill., March 13 (A.P.).—Frank Keeney, former president of the West Virginia district of the United Mine Workers of America, today told insurgent mine workers that the West Virginia miners will rally 100 per cent to their new organization if protection is promised.

The insurgent workers are meeting here to reorganize the United Mine Workers of American in opposition to the present organization headed by John L. Lewis, which now is meeting in regular convention at Indianapolis.

Mr. Keeney charged Mr. Lewis conspired to break the union in West Virginia and said the workers of his State would give all financial support possible to the new organization.

Attempt to Unseat Delegate Fails.

An attempt to take from Frank Farrington, former president of the Illinois Mine Workers, a seat won in the convention during the morning session was blocked when the secretary ruled a roll-call vote would be out of order.

Mr. Farrington won the seat by a vote of 225 to 125 after four hours of discussion. He was opposed by Powers Hapgood and John Brophy, national leaders.

Oscar Ameringer, editor of the official publication of District 12, charged before the meeting that John L. Lewis is backed by railroad, power and utility interests.

"I am not afraid of Lewis," he said, "but I am afraid of the $900,000 he has in his treasury, because it is probable that he has $900,000,000 behind that. * * * The railroad, power and utility interests are interested in breaking the union, and they would help Lewis do that."

A resolution was adopted calling on all locals of the union to send their dues to the new international organization at Springfield.

District 12 Under Fire.

Indianapolis, March 13 (A.P.).—Fiery attacks on officials of District 12, in Illinois, for alleged unwholesome conditions in the Illinois coal fields continued through the fourth day of the thirty-first constitutional convention of the United Mine Workers of America here today.

A half dozen delegates from the field related tales of maltreatment by officials when they refused to submit to their demands, and the convention was brought a step closer to probable disciplinary action on the part of the union against the insurgent elements who are assembled at Springfield, Ill., in a rump convention.

Talk on Cathedral Given Before Club

Illustrated Speech Given by President of American University.

Will Hutchins, president of American University, last night talked to members of the Men's Club of the St. Stephen and the Incarnation Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and Newton streets northwest, on "Building a Cathedral."

Mr. Hutchins devoted his address to the archtectural features of the Washington Cathedral as compared to the leading edifices of similar nature in England and France. He illustrated many of his points with views of the cathedrals.

Reports were made on the Kernahan religious survey which is being made all over the city. More than 9,000 cards have been turned in in the district in which St. Stephen's Church is located. Members of the club were urged to participate in the Visitation Campaign which is to follow the preliminary survey.

Imprint of Hand Leads To 1,050-Day Sentence

As the result of a woman's forethought in branding Stephen J. Wood, one-armed and an alleged old offender, with the floured imprint of her hand, the man was tried in Police Court yesterday on a number of charges and was sentenced by Judge Isaac R. Hitt to serve a total of 1,050 days in jail.

Wood is alleged to have staggered into a house on G street northwest, near Fourth street, Wednesday and to have proceeded to make himself at home by going to bed. He was said to be intoxicated, and when the woman occupant of the premises attempted to eject him, he resisted. After three attempts to put him out, the woman succeeded with the help of her sister-in-law. In the scuffle, however, Wood had been marked with the print of the woman's hand which had been in the flour bin.

Police were advised and shortly afterward Wood was arrested near the Gospel Mission. Both the woman and her sister identified him. The charges included intoxication and assault.

Rothschild Talks On Bucket Shops

Speaker on Radio Explains Operations of Illegal Brokerage Methods.

Bucket shop methods were explained yesterday in a radio address broadcast by Louis Rothschild, director of the Washington Better Business Bureau, through Station WRC, in which he warned that efforts to drive illegal brokers out of the District have not been entirely successful.

Mr. Rothschild described a bucket shop operator as a broker who, instead of buying stocks ordered by customers, keeps the money and "bets" that the stock will drop, whereupon he pockets the difference. If, however, the stocks rise, he attempts to pay the customer the profit out of his own pocket, if the customer is emphatic in his demands.

The trouble with that system, he explained, is that a bucket shop is seldom sound enough financially to meet such losses, which means that the customer who expects a profit not only can not collect his winnings, but is generally unable to get back even his initial investment.

Mr. Rothschild declared that it is always well to be suspicious of a broker who will accept much less than standard margins, low margins being one of the surest indications of bucketeering.

Farm Department To Move in April

The Agriculture Department's new home on the Mall—the first of a number of Government public buildings nearing completion, will be officially turned over by the contractors on March 22, but will not be occupied until April, it was learned yesterday. The old red brick building on the Mall, now occupied by the department, will be razed to make way for a new road approved by the Park and Planning Commission.

The new Internal Revenue Building is to be completed in May, but lack of funds is expected to postpone occupancy until July. "A few offices may be moved in June," Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the Public Buildings Commission, said, "but serious moving will not get under way before July 1, when new appropriations become available."

The Commerce Department is planning to move into the center section of its new building by January 1, 1931. Work on the new structure is well abreast of schedule, it was stated.

Bladder Trouble

"After suffering for years from Bladder Trouble, I found relief in Mountain Valley Mineral Water after a few weeks' use," writes a grateful sufferer. Mountain Valley Mineral Water, for 75 years the prescribed water at Hot Springs, Arkansas, brings relief naturally—first, because its alkaline minerals tend to neutralize the irritating acid—second, because it soothes inflamed tissues—but principally because it promotes elimination through the kidneys, lessening the toxic content of the urine. Learn more about this famous mineral water. Call Met. 1062.

On the Rules of Traffic
By WILLIAM ULLMAN

Drivers must have an unobstructed view of the roadway ahead, according to the District traffic regulations, which stipulate that the windshield must be kept clear of ice or snow or opened so that the driver may see. Obviously, attempting to drive an automobile without being able to see the road ahead is extremely dangerous.

$75 in Jewelry Stolen.

Sophie W. Benter, of 1835 California street northwest, reported to the police yesterday that her apartment was entered by thieves and jewelry valued at $75 was stolen.

Cut Asked in Rate For Sewer Laying

Commissioners Urged to Reduce Price to $1.60 Per Square Foot.

The District Commissioners were urged yesterday to recommend to Congress the reduction of the present rate of $3 per square foot for laying service sewers to $1.60 by Rufus S. Lusk, chairman of the committee on sewers of the Washington Board of Trade.

The "intent of Congress" seems to have been that half of the average cost of $6 for such service be paid out of the general taxes, whereas the property owner now pays 94 per cent of this cost, Mr. Lusk pointed out. Until three years ago the rate was $1.50 a foot.

Declaring that everything should be done to encourage home ownership, Mr. Lusk said, "the present cost of sewer and water in many cases will amount to as much as 5 per cent of the building cost of a home."

New Kind of Salts Taking Country By Storm

They Revitalize the System—Induce Youthful Activity—Keep Body in Splendid Condition—Free From Fat.

It doesn't take long for Americans to wake up to a good thing—only a few months ago Kruschen Salts were introduced into this country and the welcome news of their superior goodness and swift rejuvenating power traveled so fast that at one time the supply was many carloads behind the demand.

All of which goes to prove that Americans know good salts when they take them and want their friends to benefit also.

Kruschen Salts are taken for their health building value all over the world—they are the largest selling medicinal salts in Great Britain today.

Kruschen Salts are different from other salts—Kruschen is six salts in one—the very same six salts that nature put into the human body at the beginning of creation and demands you keep them there or your health won't be as good as it should be.

Unlike most salts Kruschen isn't simply a laxative—if that's all you want any old kind of salts with any kind of a label will do—but is that all you want?

When you take Kruschen Salts you not only stimulate your bowels, liver and kidneys to function naturally and perfectly, but you supply every internal organ, gland, nerve and fiber in the body with nature's own revitalizing and rejuvenating minerals.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85c at Peoples Drug Stores, or any drug store in America—take one-half a teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—in just a few days indolence changes to activity and life grows brighter.

Before the bottle is empty you'll feel years younger—eyes will brighten—step grow sprightlier—nerves steadier—you'll sleep sound, enjoy your meals and after a hard day's work you'll be ready for wholesome recreation—one million Americans know all this—ask your druggist.

NATURALIZED PILOT SETS SPEED RECORD

TWO-TON LOAD CARRIED

New York, March 13 (A.P.).—Splitting the air over Long Island Sound at a speed of 143.3 miles an hour Capt. Boris Sergievsky, naturalized Russian flier, today wrested from Germany the speed mark for seaplanes over a 100-kilometer course burdened with a useful load of 2,000 kilograms (4,409.24 pounds).

Timed by an official of the National Aeronautical Association, Capt. Sergievsky's mark will be certified to the international aeronautical body as a world mark. The old mark was 131.1 miles an hour, held by Richard Wagner.

The plane with which Capt. Sergievsky set the record is a ten-place cabin Sikorsky amphibian with the wheels removed to meet contest specifications and powered with two 575-horsepower hornet motors. It is a silver-winged biplane.

Except for certain streamline features, incorporated during the past few days, the plane is the same one with which Capt. Sergievsky two weeks ago set a world's altitude record for seaplanes of that class at 19,500 feet.

The course over which today's speed test was run is over Long Island Sound from Fairfield, Conn., to Execution Point, near Heligate Channel. Maj. Luke Christopher, secretary of the contest board of N. A. A., was in charge of the test.

Capt. Sergievsky attempted to break the world's record a week ago, but attained a speed of only 133 miles an hour for an American record, but not a world mark, as it is required to break a speed record by more than five miles an hour to establish a mark.

Capt. Sergievsky plans other speed tests soon.

Altimeter Breaks in Flight.

Capt. Sergievsky later in the day made what he believed was a successful attempt to break the world's altitude record for planes carrying 1,000 kilograms, now held by Germany with 20,961 feet. Breaking of his altimeter at 12,000 feet made it impossible to determine how high he went pending the opening of the barograph by the National Aeronautic Association in Washington.

The altitude flight began at 4:40 p. m., and continued for about an hour and 20 minutes.

Capt. Sergievsky said he climbed until his plane, the same used for the speed flight, attained its "ceiling" and refused to go higher. The load carried amounted to about 2,200 pounds.

Woman, Lion and Bear Die After Circus Fight

Cassel, Germany, March 13 (A.P.).—A woman lion tamer's heroic attempt to separate a battling lion and bear in a circus menagerie wagon proved fatal to herself and to the beasts today.

The tamer entered the cage armed only with a wire whip and succeeded in wrenching the bear from the lion's deadly claws. Suddenly the lion leaped upon the woman and clawed her fatally. Her dying cries attracted attendants, who succeeded in dragging her from the cage only after shooting the lion. The bear also died from its injuries. The battle between the beasts started after the lion had crushed a wooden partition in the cage.

U. S. Mennonites Pay For Russian Emigrants

Berlin, March 13 (A.P.).—The federal commissioner of emigration informed the Reichstag's ways and means committee today that an agreement had been concluded with the Mennonites in America by which the latter had agreed to repay in full the expenditures for the emigrating Russian Mennonites to Canada and South America. The agreement included those still remaining in German camps.

He estimated that the cost would be something under 6,000,000 marks (about $1,500,000).

King Vidor Fined $400 In Income Tax Tangle

Los Angeles, March 13 (A.P.).—King Vidor, motion picture director, today paid a $400 fine after pleading guilty in Federal court to failure to pay a proper income tax and was assessed $9,976 in deficiency taxes and penalties.

His wife, Eleanor Boardman, actress, recently paid a $2,000 fine for returning an incorrect income tax statement.

Rev. G. C. Braddock to Talk at Kendall Green Tonight.

When the Rev. Guilbert C. Braddock, vicar of St. Ann's Church for Deaf Mutes in New York City, lectures before the Literary Society of Gallaudet College tonight at Kendall Green, a precedent will have been established, for he is the youngest graduate to preside at the traditional alumni night exercises.

"Ancient Motives in Modern Fiction" will be the subject of the Rev. Mr. Braddock's address. A graduate of Gallaudet in 1916, the Rev. Mr. Braddock admits having read half the books in the school's library and in 1922 he began private studies under the Bishop of New York.

A year ago the Rev. Mr. Braddock became vicar of St. Ann's Church, which has 400 baptized members of Protestant Episcopal faith, but in addition to this, spreads its influence among 4,000 deaf mutes in New York City. The Rev. Mr. Braddock also conducts a mission work among his silent communicants in Brooklyn, Newark and Paterson, N. J.

Atheistic Easter Is Plan of Soviets

Antireligious Carnivals Are to Be Directed by Godless League.

Moscow, March 13 (A.P.).—Huge antireligious carnivals and demonstrations will be held in Moscow and other large Russian cities on April 19, the first day of Easter in Russia, under the joint direction of the Soviet Trade Unions, the Militant Atheist Society and the League of the Godless.

Lectures, performances and concerts, in a campaign against the Gods of all faiths, are to be given in clubs, army barracks, students' dormitories and similar places throughout the country.

The Central Trade Union authorities have instructed their provincial organizations to participate actively in the recruiting of new members for the League of the Godless. The Moscow region alone is expected to furnish 100,000 new atheists during the Easter campaign.

RUGGED FOES FOR HILLTOP BOXERS

Only 1 Bucknell Man Has Been Knocked Down This Year.

BUCKNELL'S boxing team, which meets Georgetown tomorrow night in Ryan Gymnasium, boasts the unique record of not having had a single "knockdown" scored against any of its members in five previous meets this season.

Only one, Norman Egel, heavyweight, has been defeated by any other but a judges' decision, Egel having lost to Yustin Sirutis, giant New York University star, on a technical knockout last Saturday. On that occasion, however, it was Egel's big disadvantage in weight—30 pounds—which caused the referee to stop the bout in the third round. Sirutis plainly was the better boxer, but he hadn't been able to knock Egel off his feet before the bout was stopped.

Frank Lepore, the Bison's flashy welterweight, who will oppose Georgetown's captain and intercollegiate champion, Charley Fish, has yet to be defeated this season. He has lost only once, by a decision, during his career at Bucknell.

Bucknell Leader Beaten Only Once.

Capt. Lou Mutzel, of the visitors, was defeated for the first time in six years of scholastic and collegiate competition last Saturday when he was outpointed by Milt Hutner, N. Y. U.'s metropolitan golden glove champion of 1929.

Mutzel will mix with Buddy Bordeau, Georgetown's South Atlantic light-heavyweight titleholder, who, prior to his bout with Barnett, of Western Maryland, last Friday, had never been beaten by a college boxer.

Georgetown will offer an undefeated boxer in Mike Tardugno, clever little featherweight, who has won five bouts thus far this season. He will face Mickey Boerner, of Bucknell. One of Tardugno's 1930 victims is Fitzgerald, intercollegiate champion, of Navy.

A. A. U. Heads to Attend Post Court Tournament

The board of managers of the District of Columbia Association, A. A. U., will attend in a body The Washington Post basket ball championship tournament Monday night at Tech High School following its regular monthly meeting, which will be held in the school, starting at 8 o'clock.

Contemplated District championship swimming and handball tournaments will be discussed in the board meeting.

Spring Links Event Arranged; Power Is Honored.

ARRANGEMENTS for the spring tournament of the Washington Golf and Country Club, which will be held on April 29 and 30 and May 1 and 2, were completed last night at a meeting of the golf committee held at the clubhouse, under the chairmanship of Fred D. Paxton.

The usual system of submitting all applications for entry to a subcommittee of the golf committee was adopted for the coming event and it was also decided that on April 28 the privileges of the course would be extended to all entrants. As in the past, all out-of-town contestants will be accorded the hospitality of the club. The following committees were appointed:

Golf fund—Harry D. Cashman, E. J. Swift, O. L. Veerhoff, Bolling Galt, R. G. Hunt.

Handicap—Ray Morman, chairman; Dr. R. N. Sutton, Charles B. Stewart.

The guest of honor at the dinner was John I. Power, who has served efficiently as chairman of the house committee and who is leaving the club to engage in business in Philadelphia. He was presented with a handsome golf bag as a testimonial from the members of the club. The following members of the golf committee participated in the dinner:

A. W. Howard, Bolling Galt, Judge C. C. Carlin, Walter R. McCallum, R. G. Hunt, Ben L. Fuller, Dr. E. W. Titus, J. Logan Hopkins, O. L. Veerhoff, Judge L. C. Garnett, D. C. Gruver, S. L. Mosby, D. R. Elmore, Dr. J. T. McClenahan, R. T. Harrell, Dr. Thomas J. Rice, R. J. Wise, E. J. Swift, R. J. Morman, Harry D. Cashman, Dr. Jenkins, Dr. R. N. Sutton, J. E. Rice, Charles B. Stewart, Ralph Fowler.

At the conclusion of the dinner speeches in commendation of the services rendered by Chairman Power were delivered by Charles H. Doing, president of the club; J. E. Rice, Dr. J. T. McClenahan and A. G. Rice, secretary. An entertainment was furnished by Ralph Fowler and by R. T. Harrell, the latter showing a number of motion pictures of the members of the club in action upon the golf course.

WONDERS TO DRILL.

Candidates for the Wonder Boy Insect Nine, especially catchers, are requested to report tomorrow at 1 o'clock on Phoenix Field for practice. A meeting will be held tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock at 507 Fourteenth street northeast. Games are being booked by Manager Poole at that address.

Squad of 30 Greets American Grid Coach

In the spring at American University a young man's fancy seems to turn to thoughts of football. At least, so it seems to Coach Walter H. Young, who was pleasantly surprised the other day when more than 30 would-be eagle varsity gridmen reported for spring practice. Never before, not even during the fall season, has as many as 30 candidates appeared for football practice at the Massachusetts Avenue Heights institution.

The record turnout is timely, says Coach Young, since the 1930 squad includes but three regulars of the 1929 eleven. Eight of the regulars of last fall's team will graduate in June. Orville Targee and Forrest Diehl, backs, and Ed Parkes, end, are the remaining veterans.

Nats' Regular Line-Up in Action

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

BILOXI, Miss., March 13.—While there was no competitive baseball this morning, Manager Walter Johnson had the Nats on their toes in final preparation for tomorrow's opening exhibition game, which will see the New Orleans Pelicans in action here.

Batting practice was given special attention and every pitcher except the trio to be used tomorrow, Fred Marberry, Irving Hadley and Lloyd Brown, and Garland Braxton, who is not doing any flinging as yet, was given a lengthy assignment on the mound. More of the hitters pounded the ball hard.

Manager Johnson is looking forward to the game tomorrow with particular interest as he admits that the performance of Hadley on the hill this season is likely to make or break his team's first division hopes and the Lynn big boy will be getting his first test against the Southern Leaguers. Brown also is being counted upon to do some good work, but what he shows tomorrow will not mean so much to the Nat leader. This also goes for Marberry, for there is no question mark on Johnson's list as to what type of pitching may be expected of him this season.

Hayes and McLeod To Break In.

If Goose Goslin fails to come to terms, the Nationals likely will line up tomorrow just as the fans will see them in the opening game in Washington on April 14, although either Jack Hayes or Jimmy McLeod are given a chance to break in.

Ruel and Tate are due to alternate behind the plate, with Judge, Myer, Cronin and Bluege composing the infield and Rice, West and Barnes filling the garden berths.

Cronin drifted into camp in the wee small hours of the morning and although he took his first workout today, he will start in the game tomorrow, with McLeod and Hayes breaking in before it ends.

Biloxi is taking this contest mighty seriously and the city fathers have declared the day half holiday, with business houses closing their doors and a record turn out of fans promised.

Catcher Muddy Ruel seems to have taken on a new lease on life this spring and is throwing better now than he did during the first month of last season. The advance dope indicated that Bennie Tate would share first string honors with the veteran this season, but indications now are that Ruel will get the call most of the time. With Roy Spencer on the ineligible list, Tate is not likely to have much spare time on his hands, however.

Johnson Vetoes Comeback Role.

Some of the players are trying to coax Johnson to essay a comeback this season, but they are making little headway in their arguments. All seem to be convinced that Walter's arm is still good and, as he is undoubtedly the hardest worker in the camp, they contend that he would be sure to win a few games in view of his great physical condition. "Not a chance" is Johnson's answer to all suggestions of this nature.

Buddie Myer is sticking around that middle sack as long as any one is willing to drive ball at him and is showing signs of improvement as a fielder. Double-play routine is part of the daily drill and he seems to be getting the ball away well. He is still far away from Jack Hayes on pivot plays, but it must be remembered that the position is a comparatively new one to him.

George Loepp is proving to be quite a fly chaser, but he has not shown any marked power with the willow, while his leg muscles apparently have not hardened and he is anything but fast running to first base.

Cardinal Bosses Heartily Indorse Team With Rookies Bolstering Capable Veterans

Club Little Changed, But Rhem and Bell Add to Pitching.

This is the eleventh of a series of first-hand Associated Press stories of major league baseball prospects.

By BRIAN BELL.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 13 (A.P.).—The baseball world at large may not regard the chances of the St. Louis Cardinals so favorably as those of some other major league clubs, but the Red Birds can not be said to lack wholehearted support in their own family.

Sam Breadon, president of the club, declared the 1930 edition to be "the best we ever had." When it is recalled that the Cards have won two pennants and one world championship in the last four years, this is high praise.

Charles E. (Gabby) Street, the manager, says without qualification, "I know we have a good team."

The battery mate of Walter Johnson at Washington many years ago, promoted from coach to manager of the Cards, scoffs at suggestions that some of his best pitchers are growing old and can not hope to continue to match their arms with the youth of the day.

Says Veterans Are Still Capable.

All his veterans are still capable performers, he says, and there are some bright prospects among the younger colony of pitchers in the camp. Mr. Breadon sees eye to eye with the manager. In the presidential opinion the oldsters will be as good as ever with the youngsters applying the finishing touch.

The Cardinals are not greatly changed from last season except in

Hitting the Baseball Trail

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 13 (A. P.).—Two of the leading holdouts of the New York Giants, Freddy Lindstrom and Larry Benton, came to terms today and signed their contracts for 1930. It was not announced just what agreement they reached with the management. This leaves only Ed Roush unsigned on the Giant roster.

The star third baseman and pitcher are not expected to get into action for several days as they are far behind the rest of the Giant squad in getting into condition. With the exhibition game with the Chicago White Sox scheduled for today cancelled, the New York squad went through two long practice sessions.

Brooklyn Blanks House of David.

Clearwater, Fla., March 13 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the House of David, Benton Harbor, Mich., today, 9 to 0. Krider, Blethen and Greenfield held the House of David batters to seven scattered hits, while twelve safeties rained off the clubs of the Robins.

The House of David started Janesko on the mound, but ran short of hurlers so borrowed Lefty Faulkner and Roy from the Dodgers.

Browns Are Reported Seeking Infielder.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 13 (A.P.).—Reports were current in the Browns' training camp here today that a deal with the Buffalo Club of the International League was pending which would give the St. Louis Team a reserve infielder. The reports had it that Howard Feigau, formerly with the Cardinals and Chicago Cubs was the player the Browns were angling for. The Browns and the Buffalo Team will meet at Fort Lauderdale tomorrow in an exhibition game.

There was no development in the holdout situation today. Manush, Red Kress and Blaeholder still are unsigned.

Sukeforth to Bat Third for Reds.

Orlando, Fla., March 13 (A.P.).—Clyde Sukeforth, the Cincinnati left-hand first string catcher, may bat in third place this season, it was announced today by Manager Dan Howley. If the move is made it will be because the young catcher has speed and hitting ability. He batted .354 last year.

Phillies' Training Pleases Shotton.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 13 (A.P.). Manager Burt Shotton today announced his satisfaction with practices by the Phillies in the training camp here.

"There is such a thing as being too fine so early in the work," he said. "We could play a practice game, but I am opposed to it. We will continue as we have been doing with batting and field practices twice daily."

The Phillies open the "Grape Fruit League" season on Saturday when they meet the Detroit Tigers at Tampa.

Harris Primes Rookies For Phillies.

Tampa, Fla., March 13 (A.P.).—Unable to meet the St. Louis Cardinals today on account of rain, the Detroit Tigers will carry the pitchers and line-up slated for today over until Saturday when they contest with the Philadelphia Nationals in the third exhibition game of the season. The Phillies will bring a batch of heavy hitters here, and Manager Stanley Harris looks to them to make a severe test of Wyatt, Hogsett and Herring, recruit hurlers.

Pirate Regulars Win On Brickell's Hit.

Paso Robles, Calif., March 13 (A.P.). Fred Brickell hit for the circuit today in the fifth inning, scoring Hemsley in front of him, and the Pittsburgh Pirates regulars beat out the yannigans, 5 to 4. The "yans," however, outwalloped the regulars, 10 to 7.

Dick Bartell, erstwhile infielder holdout, broke into the yannigan line-up at short and hit a triple and a single. He signed up yesterday.

Chisox Shortstops Battle for Berth.

San Antonio, Tex., March 13 (A.P.). Competition for infield jobs on the first Chicago White Sox line-up has dwindled to a battle between Irv Jeffries, hard-hitting recruit, and Bill Hunnefield, for the shortstop berth. Bill Kamm worked at third today, with Clancy at first, Cissell at second and Hunnefield, Jeffries, Kerr and Ernie Smith dividing time at short.

Martha Norelius to Marry Joe Wright, Noted Oarsman

Olympic Champions Who Met at Swim to Wed Saturday.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., March 13 (A.P.).—Miss Martha Norelius, Olympic swimming champion, and Joseph Wright, jr., of Toronto, diamond scull champion in 1928, will be married here Saturday night.

The wedding, uniting two of the most prominent names in international sport, was planned as a quiet family affair until a report of the engagement of the famous oarsman and the swimmer leaked out today.

At the same time it was revealed in Chicago that Miss Norelius was granted a divorce there last Saturday from Wirt A. McAllister, New York bank clerk. Miss Norelius' wedding to McAllister four years ago at the age of 17 had never been publicly acknowledged.

In admitting that the marriage would take place Saturday, Miss Norelius said that she planned to retire from swimming competition immediately. Since winning the 400-meter championships for the United States at the Olympics of 1924, Miss Norelius has smashed a dozen world records, held many national titles, and defended her 400-meter crown successfully at the Olympics of 1928.

Miss Norelius met Wright for the first time when she entered the Wrigley 10-mile marathon swim in Toronto after turning professional in 1929. The Canadian sculling champion is en route here from Toronto with several members of the family who will attend the ceremony.

After a short honeymoon, Wright, son of the famous sculler who now coaches the Argonaut Rowing Club in Toronto, will begin training for the Henley regatta in England, where he will race again for the diamond sculls championship in July. The couple will reside in Toronto.

Britten Says Classic Will Be Revived

Pegler Says Political Pressure Will Cause Renewal in 1932.

Navy Will Waive All Objections If Necessary, Is Belief.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

THE Army and the Navy will resume their football rivalry on Soldier Field, Chicago, in 1932 even if the Navy, for this one game, is compelled to waive every point raised by Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton in his bill of objections which led to the severance of relations between the two schools in 1928.

Although the superintendents of the two academies, Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, of West Point, and Admiral John S. Robison, of Annapolis, probably know nothing about this at the present time, I have the assurance of the Hon. Fred A. Britten, member of Congress for Illinois, the man who by the application of firm but insistent pressure, obtained the 1926 game for Chicago that it is so.

Mr. Britten wants the game for Chicago as the main event of the sport program of the World Fair and, having watched him exert the firm but insistent pressure which caused Admiral Nulton to change his mind about the impossibility of playing in Chicago in 1926, I am quite ready to credit his prediction that, whatever the general and the admiral may say just now, the Army and the Navy will play in Chicago again in the fall of 1932.

This regardless of the Navy's objections to the Army's rules of eligibility for football and regardless, also, of any conflicting dates to which the academies may have committed themselves in their 1932 schedules in the meantime.

Year of Navy's Choice Favors Britton.

Assuming that the academies will not get together in 1931, which is a safe assumption, the Navy will have the privilege of naming the site of the game two years hence as the teams always have played on a home-and-home understanding and the Army chose the battleground, New York, the last time they met. This fact favors Mr. Britten's design as he is very influential on the Navy side, being something important on the naval affairs committee of the House, but has somewhat less influence in the Army.

Moreover, as the Army has always claimed to be willing to resume the game on the old terms, there would really be no necessity for the application of pressure to Gen. Smith. It will merely require an appeal to Admiral Robison's discretion to persuade him to waive the Navy's complaints for the one game, anyway, and the football contest will be on the schedule again for Chicago.

There are many opportunities for an influential member of the House committee on naval affairs to appeal to the discretion of an admiral commanding a division or station, some of them so subtle and involving such commonplace conveniences of life that one would not ordinarily consider them in relation to so important a matter.

Britton in Position to Fix Kitchen Sink.

But I remember that when Admiral Nulton was in doubt about the advisability of going to Chicago in 1926, something was said about the leaky condition of the sink in his kitchen on the post at Annapolis or the sprung window-sash where the water came through into the bedroom at night when the rain blew from the east, or something of that annoying but trivial nature.

At any rate, the idea was conveyed to the admiral that the only way to get things done for one's self in this world was to do things for other people and Mr. Britton was in a position to facilitate or obstruct all manner of improvements, repairs and innovations at Annapolis according to his disposition. Congressmen, of course, are politicians, and live by the rule of helping those who have helped them, and by the time a man has acquired flag rank in the Navy he has been around Washington long enough to learn the important principles of practical politics, too.

I am given to understand that Admiral Robison is a man of much

W. MARYLAND-NAVY BOXING MATCH STIRS FANS

Tars' Foemen Carry Big Threat

Navy's Long Winning Streak in Danger Tomorrow.

Both Teams Ready; Champions Will See Action.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 13.—Not since boxing became firmly established as an intercollegiate sport eleven years ago has a dual meet attracted as much interest locally as that between Navy and Western Maryland to be staged at the Naval Academy Saturday night.

Without doubt, these teams right now are the outstanding group in the Eastern intercollegiate association. The Middies are rounding out another impressive season, their eleventh, without defeat in a dual contest, a record that will probably stand for many years.

The Green Terrors also are passing through a great season, losing to Penn State being the only thing to mar an otherwise unblemished record. The Lions beat the Up-Staters 4 to 3 after a series of gruelling bouts. Navy on the other hand, eked out a victory over the Nittanys by a like score. If comparisons are to be figured for anything, the Terrors' 5 to 2 victory over Georgetown must be reckoned with Navy's hard time to down the Hilltoppers 4 to 3.

Terrors Improved Over Last Year.

Also, by way of comparison, fight fans who have followed the progress of the two teams are pointing out that the Westminster outfit probably is a bit stronger and better balanced than the group that gave the Middies such a tight rub last year. Navy, on the other hand, is not credited with being quite as nifty as its teams in recent years, but they are a game bunch of fighters and on the whole clever in the finer points of the mitt game.

The Terrors will enter Saturday's contest with two intercollegiate champions defending their crowns. These are Doug Crosby, lightweight, and Ted Klepac, light heavyweight. Both have won all of their bouts so far this year. Navy has one titleholder, Fitzgerald, featherweight. This little slugger has suffered two reverses this season, Tardugno of Georgetown being one of his conquerors, and Schadel of Pennsylvania the other.

5 Batterymen Available for 27-Game Schedule.

Special to The Washington Post.

DURHAM, N. C., March 13.—Four southpaws and a right-hander form Coach Jack Coombs' pitching staff at Duke University for the coming baseball season. Three of the southpaws are veterans. The other two hurlers are sophomores.

Belue, Jenkins and Hawkins, the veterans, are seniors. They are all left-handed. Jenkins was credited with much of Duke's success in Southern Conference baseball last spring. Belue reached the high mark of the season here last year when he hurled a no-hit game against Wofford.

Lee Hawkins, the other veteran southpaw, had trouble during his sophomore and junior years in controlling his curves. As he is a heavy hitter, he was shifted to an outfield berth and only pitched on off days. This season, however, he is said to have regained his lost control and to be ready now for a complete rating as a hurler.

Duffey Graduates From Freshmen.

Horace Duffey, southpaw, and Tim McKeithan, right-hander, are the sophomore hurlers. They were members of the Duke freshman team last year which annexed the State freshman championship. Both are being closely tutored by Coach Coombs for regular hurling days on the varsity.

Because of the length of the 27-game schedule, it is likely that Coach Coombs will shift his batteries from day to day. He has five catchers, Capt. Warren, Barker, Allford, Howell and Rochelle, who are slated to do all the receiving.

Cody Signs 3-Year Contract at Clemson

Clemson College, S. C., March 13 (A.P.).—Josh Cody, for the last three years football and basket ball coach at Clemson College, has signed a three-year contract, Dr. E. W. Sykes, president of the college, announced today.

During the last three years Cody's teams have been very successful. The football team has won 21 of the 31 games played in the three years.

Whitney's Easter Hero, Lame, May Miss Race

Cheltenham, England, March 13 (A.P.).—J. H. Whitney's steeplechaser Easter Hero was found to be lame after winning the Gold Cup here Tuesday, and it is extremely doubtful if he will be able to compete in the Grand National, in which he has been a favorite.

Easter Hero's trainer, J. Anthony, stated that the horse was found to be lame at 7 o'clock this morning.

"It is believed he struck himself at the first fence in the Gold Cup on Tuesday," he said. "I am hoping for the best and will delay his scratching from the Grand National."

A widely known veterinarian has been called in to treat the horse. In the event of Easter Hero being unable to run in the Grand National, Mr. Whitney will still have a representative in Sir Lindsay, which won the National Hunt Steeplechase yesterday.

Cumberland Has 29 Players Now in Fold

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., March 13.—With the signing of Russell Chadwick, young shortstop, who looked so good with Johnstown here last season, and Johnny Smittle, reserve pitcher and outfielder the latter part of last year, and acceptance of terms by Irvin ("Stub") Rase, the league's leading pitcher last year, the Cumberland Team of the Middle Atlantic League now has 29 players under contract.

The batterymen will report here Monday, April 21, and the rest of the squad is scheduled to get to work on Friday, April 25. It was definitely decided at a meeting of the club directors to hold spring training in this city instead of sending the candidates to a nearby town, as has been the custom in past years. At least two weeks will be put in in training. The season opens May 9. Last year the team trained at Berkeley Springs, and the expense was $1,500.

Methods looking to raising $1,500 forfeit to be posted with the league by April 1 were discussed.

Hampden-Sydney Nine Faces Hard Schedule

Special to The Washington Post.

Hampden-Sydney, Va., March 13.—The schedule for the Hampden-Sydney Baseball Team as released here by Coach Bernier, director of athletics, is one of the stiffest offered the Tiger Nine in several seasons. Opening March 27 with Drexel, the Bengals plunge into a sixteen-game card against such teams as Lafayette, Delaware, Washington and Lee and Swarthmore, in addition to the regular Virginia Conference opponents.

As yet the card is incomplete, several games being pending and a few open dates remaining which the manager is attempting to fill. A feature of the season will be the four-game series with Randolph-Macon in which the Bengals will renew their long standing rivalry with the Lemon and Black.

The Hampden-Sydney Squad plays only seven games on Death Valley, the others drawing them away from the home lot, one two-week trip through Pennsylvania and Delaware being slated for the 1st of May. The schedule:

March 27, Drexel at home.
April 4, Lafayette at Petersburg; 8, Richmond at home; 11, William and Mary at home; 16, Bridgewater at home; 17, Washington and Lee at Lexington; 22, Delaware, at home; 23, Randolph-Macon at home; 24, Randolph-Macon at home; 30, Randolph-Macon at Ashland.
May 1, Delaware at Newark, Del.; 2, Swarthmore at Swarthmore, Pa.; 3, Drexel at Philadelphia, Pa.; 5, Randolph-Macon at Ashland; 10, Richmond at Richmond; 12, William and Mary at Williamsburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., March 13.—Robert MacCartee, of Washington, tonight was reelected captain of the St. John's College Basket Ball Team following the annual banquet for the team. It was also announced at the meeting by Athletic Director M. Talbot Riggs that Carl MacCartee, star and captain of Tech High School, of Washington, and a brother of the Johnnie leader, would enter St. John's next fall.

STOCK PRICES RISE AS TURNOVER SAGS

RAILS EASE SLIGHTLY

New York, March 13 (A.P.).—Aided by sudden return to speculative favor of the petroleum shares, and short covering in anticipation of the lower rediscount rate announced after the close, speculators for the rise regained control of the price movement in today's stock market. Trading quited down considerably, but was comparatively active, 3,853,580 shares changing hands.

The market was subjected to further selling pressure for a time during the morning, but eager bidding for the oil shares finally turned the tide. Some irregularity persisted at the close, but the majority of shares closed higher, regaining, on the average, about half of yesterday's losses. The movement in the oil group, which reached impressive proportions yesterday, continued to gain momentum today. Gains were largely moderate, but nearly a score of issues were pushed to new 1930 high levels. The advance was aided by announcement of judicial sanction for the California production curtailment plan, and further firming up of gasoline prices.

The reduction in the Federal reserve rediscount rate to 3½ per cent, with one exception the lowest level since formation of the reserve system, had been widely forecast, and while viewed with great favor by stock market operators for the rise, was regarded as lacking an adequate element of surprise to be an important bullishness development. The last two cuts in the rediscount rate have caused only feeble bullish demonstrations. Nevertheless, this development was sufficiently favorable to cause the shorts to cover in expectation of it.

Value of Lower Rate Debateable.

There has been considerable clamoring for a lower rediscount rate, in the hope it would provide a needed stimulant to business as it largely failed to gain in momentum during the past few weeks, although March is the month when the spring acceleration is expected. Not all bankers and economists agree that the lower rate will prove effective, however. Gov. Norris, of the Philadelphia Reserve Bank, stated only recently that lower rediscount rates were regarded by a considerable portion of the reserve officials as scarcely the proper remedy for present conditions. On the other hand, the charges for credit accommodations to business have not shown declines proportionate to the cheapening of credit for the stock market, and it is hoped that the lower rediscount rate may hasten the cheapening of commercial loans.

The weekly Federal Reserve brokerage loan figures showed a rather startling gain, even in view of the large amount of refinancing which had to be paid for. Loans jumped $137,000,000, the largest gain since last September, when the so-called Hoover-Coolidge bull market was singing its swan song. Despite this increase, loans remain comparatively low, but many observers regard it as an indication that pools have been distributing stock to the public on a fairly large scale during the last ten days, with consequent weakening of the technical position of the market. This gain was entirely provided by the banks, which in addition made up a reduction of $51,000,000 in loans provided from nonbank sources.

In the oil shares, Standards of California and New York rose about 2 and 1½ points to new 1930 peaks, while New Jersey equaled its maximum for the year at 66⅞ with a gain of nearly 3 points. Most of the leading independents reached new high ground with gains of a point or two. United States Industrial Alcohol rallied more than 4 points in short covering on announcement that the alcohol price structure had been stabilized, but lost half its gain later. Pressure was removed from Simmons and American & Foreign Power, the latter closing up a couple of points.

Eastman Kodak Advances.

Shares rising 2 to 5 points included Air Reduction, American Can, Eastman Kodak, Electric Auto-Lite, National Power & Light, Vanadium and Warren Bros. U. S. Steel closed up 1½ points. The steels involved in merger negotiations and controversies generally sagged. Gulf States advanced moderately, but Bethlehem, Youngstown and Republic closed 1 to 3 points off. Standard Brands was a soft spot, reflecting its 1929 earnings report, showing the $1.50 dividend not fully earned. Profits are reported running at higher levels this year. The shares touched 24⅜, off ⅜. Coppers were generally heavy, and rails were inclined to ease, in expectation of unfavorable February earnings reports due within the next few days. Sloss Sheffield Steel dropped 8 points.

The commodity markets were again inclined toward lower levels. March and May wheat lost about a cent, while July closed up ¾. Corn lost 1 to 1½ cents. Cotton closed practically unchanged.

Foreign exchanges mounted sharply in expectation of the lower rediscount rate, and influenced by reduction in the bankers' acceptance and time-money rates. Call money held at 4 per cent renewals with the midday drop to 3½, but was in plentiful supply. Sterling Cables rallied ⅛ cent to $4.86 5-16, and the discount on the Canadian dollar was reduced to less than ¼ cent.

RAILS LEAD ADVANCE AS BOND SALES GAIN

Price Average of 30 Issues Touches New Peak in $16,000,000 Day.

MONEY RATES EASIER

New York, March 13. (A.P.).—The strengthening bond market moved upward at a vigorous pace today, bringing the average for 30 issues to a new 1930 high, or within one-fifth of a point of the 1929 peak, attained in January of last year.

Demand for the rails was particularly aggressive and once again two score bonds in that group made record levels for 1930 or considerably longer. The market's total turnover of slightly more than $16,000,000 was the year's largest.

Money was particularly easy. Another cut of an eighth per cent in bankers' acceptances was accompanied by a drop in time-loan charges, the 30, 60 and 90 day maturities being quoted at a 4¼ per cent and the longer dates at 4¼ flat. A year ago 7½ to 7¾ per cent rates prevailed.

The accumulation of funds here for the March 15 income tax payment resulted in an abundance of call funds, which once more dropped to 3½ per cent. Money was available in the outside market at 3 per cent.

Score of Rails Advance.

The rediscount cut by the New York Federal Reserve Bank was generally anticipated and bond buyers went ahead confidently. The demand for the high-grade investment issues found the floating supplies rather reduced, with the result that many of the gains were sharp. A score of rails rose a point or more.

All the listed United States Governments touched at new highs. The Treasury 3⅜s advanced 11-16, but the improvement in the other obligations was smaller, averaging about ¼ point.

One of the strongest rails was the Santa Fe general 4, up 1¼ points on sales of about $160,000, principal amount, the largest turnover in some time. Other active issues, including Central Pacific 5s, Chesapeake & Ohio "B" 4½s, Erie 5s, Denver & Rio Grande 4s, Missouri Pacific general 4s, Missouri, Kansas Texas adjustment 5s, and first 4s, New York Central debenture 4s, and general 3½s, New Haven 4½s, several of the Pennsylvania bonds, St. Louis-San Francisco 4½s, Kansas City Southern first 3s, Southern Railway general 4s, and Wabash 5s. Most of these rose at least a point.

Industrials Prove Stronger.

Industrials, especially steel company bonds, pulled up another notch or two. The firmer issues included Chile Copper 5s, International Match 5s, Lorillard 5s, Republic Iron & Steel 5½s, Youngstown Sheet 5s, and Wheeling Steel 5½, and 4½.

Investment demand for utilities brought out several 1930 record prices. The American Telephone debenture 5s, of 1965, scored a new top at 103⅜. Columbia Gas & Electric 6s, Public Service Electric & Gas 4½s, and Utah Power 5s, were others to reach maximums for the year.

German bonds led the foreign list, many state, municipal and corporation issues in that subdivision showing buoyancy. Republic 7s touched 107⅞, the best price of the year. Numerous South Americans were active and sharply higher.

The prompt oversubscription on the $60,000,000 issue of Pennsylvania Railroad 40-year debenture 4½s, reflected the current taste for high grade securities, and the new bonds, offered at 94½, sold up to 94¾ on the curb market.

CAPITAL EXPORT BAN IS LIFTED BY ITALY

BANK BOWLERS TO MEET

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Lifting of the export ban on capital by Italy is considered by President Robert V. Fleming, of Riggs National Bank, as of wide importance to this city and the entire country and the action is naturally gratifying to the Italian Ambassador. Commenting on the raising of the embargo, Mr. Fleming said that the decision is of much more far-reaching importance than might at first appear on the surface.

The decree of the Italian government providing freedom of exchange operations has the effect of removing the embargo on exportation of foreign capital from that country and while the move is of no great financial significance aside from meaning termination of the last war restriction regarding financial matters, it is of great interest to a large section of the public having savings in Italy. The many Italians living in this country and having savings in Italy can now withdraw them and bring them to the United States.

Henry Assumes Bank Position.

Clinton McElwee Henry has been elected to the advisory board of the Twentieth street and Pennsylvania avenue branch of the Merchants Bank & Trust Co., to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his father, Samuel W. Henry.

At the latest meeting of the Home Building Association Dr. George B. Roth was elected as a director to fill the unexpired term of Morris Hahn, who had resigned on account of ill health.

That recent predictions of gold shortages do not appear to be warranted by present indications is the opinion expressed by the Bank of America in a discussion of the international gold situation.

The bank attributes the decline in commodity prices which have been in progress for the past year to continued overproduction rather than to a change in the relation between the demand for credit and the gold base.

Graymur Corporation Directors.

At the annual meeting of the Graymur Corporation, held at Wilmington, Del., directors were reelected. G. M.-P. Murphy, chairman of the board, stated that the 5,800 shares of the corporation's stock held at the end of 1929 had been resold since at a profit. He also stated that the liquidating value of the corporation as of March 6, 1930, was $49.52 as compared with $50 a share net received by the corporation from the sale of its stock last summer.

At the latest meeting of the board of directors of the Federal Storage Co., the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent on preferred stock was declared payable April 15, to stockholders of record at the close of business March 31.

Teams of the Riggs Bank Club and the Security Club of American Security & Trust Co., will compete Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in a bowling match at Convention Hall bowling alleys. Each group will have 50 bowlers, eight teams of five men and two teams of five ladies. G. H. Morris is president of the Riggs Bank Club and H. F. Kimball is president of the Security Club.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, March 13 (A.P.).—WHEAT—Trading became of a more two-sided character today, the market shifting to a notable degree from recent out-and-out bias downward. Reports were at hand pointing to considerable impairment of crop prospects from domestic winter wheat belt, but the soft wheat belt and in hard wheat territory as well. Meanwhile, however, persistent letting go of May wheat holdings was in progress, especially on the part of farmers who were acquiring ownership of wheat yet to be harvested.

Final quotations on wheat were irregular, ranging from 1⅞ cents decline to ⅞ cent advance, compared with yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅛@1¼ down, oats unchanged to ⅛ higher, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 12 cents.

Rallies in Chicago wheat values today were partly due to reports that worst of indiscriminate selling pressure at Liverpool was over. Besides, the market here was responsive to complaints of high winds and of drought in sections of Kansas and Oklahoma, and these complaints supplemented by increasing advices of winter killing in soft wheat districts, southern and central Illinois in particular. On the other hand, export business in North American wheat today continued to be almost zero, notwithstanding assertions by some authorities that export needs amount to 9,000,000 bushels a week.

More or less rainfall today at some points in Kansas had an evident bearish effect on the market during the last part of the day, and no too did forecasts of rising temperatures and of news that the Canadian crop was passing eastward instead of south. Wheat price downturns were also ascribed partly to the influence of weakness of corn values. May and July corn today collapsing to below any price level heretofore touched this season. However, buying support in the wheat market was forthcoming at critical junctures, Farm Board allies being credited with purchasing May wheat aggressively when most effective, a special instance being just before trading ended for the day.

Corn market weakness was associated with storage difficulties here and with the fact that emergency rules permit railroad track deliveries. Cash traders took their cue from the course of other cereals.

Provisions were governed chiefly by hog market declines.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Detroit Aircraft and Others.

I. J.—Will you please convey to me your opinion regarding the following stocks and their future outlook: Detroit Aircraft, Mavis Bottling and Hayes Body?

Answer—Detroit Aircraft pays no dividend. Stock is not to be regarded in the nature of an investment; as a matter of fact, it is in its present status a radical speculation. The same is likewise true of both Hayes Body and Mavis Bottling. The former has recently sustained a sharp decline in profits and reports are that the company has lost important business. Earnings have been erratic in recent years. Owing to slump in income, quarterly dividend of 2 per cent in stock was passed January 2, 1930. Mavis Bottling is also a non-dividend payer, and as such lacks attraction.

Associated Gas & Electric.

S. S.—Please advise me why the common stock of the Associated Gas & Electric Co. (on N. Y. Produce Exchange), is traded in at a higher figure than the class "A" stock (on N. Y. Curb Exchange)? What dividend does the common stock pay? Also, please advise of the earnings, dividends and future prospects of the companies listed below: Sweets Co. of America, Happiness Candy Stores, Pennroad Corporation, General Gas & Electric Corporation.

Answer—In consideration of the fact that Associated Gas & Electric is at present paying $2 annually in dividends on the class "A" stock, whereas nothing is being paid on the common, it is impossible to explain why the former should be selling higher than the latter, especially as the class "A" stock has certain voting rights, while the common has none, except with the consent of a majority of the class "B" stock.

Sweets Co. of America pays 25 cents a share quarterly dividends. Net income for year ended December 31, 1929, was $121,748, equivalent to $1.22 per share, compared with $106,661, or $1.06 a share, for preceding year. Earnings have increased each year since 1926. Happiness Candy Stores, Inc., has paid no cash dividends since January 15, 1927. Net income for year ended December 31, 1928 (latest figures published), was $205,163, or 18 cents a share, compared with $302,676, or 28 cents a share in 1927. Earnings of this company have been steadily declining since 1923. Pennroad Corporation pays no dividend. Organized by the Pennsylvania R. R. Co. to make investments and take advantage of opportunities on a much broader basis than possible under the limited powers of a railroad company, company makes no separate report of income account.

General Gas & Electric Corporation of Delaware has six separate and distinct issues of stock, on all of which annual dividends ranging from $1.50 to $8 per share are being paid regularly, with extra dividends occasionally, on the class "A" and class "B" common shares. Net income of the company for twelve months ended June 30, 1929, was $4,416,580, comparing with $3,390,010 for the 1928 fiscal year. Outlook for Pennroad Corporation and General Gas & Electric appears encouraging, while that for the other two companies named is problematical.

Two Chemical Stocks.

G. B. H.—Do you consider Davison Chemical a better stock than International Agricultural Chemical common?

Answer—Based on the outlook and earnings standpoint, Davison Chemical would appear to have preference over International Agricultural Chemical common. For 1929, Davison earned $3.34 per share on the capital stock, compared with $1.42 per share for the eighteen months ended with June, 1928, while profits for International were 79 cents a share on the common in 1929, against $1.34 for 1928.

While nothing is paid on Davison or International, the remarks of the president of Davison contained in the 1929 annual report indicate that a "satisfactory" dividend will be declared this year in view of the substantial gain in earnings. Davison is a leading factor in the fertilizer industry and is a large producer of sulphuric acid. The company has developed a chemical known as "Silica Gel," whose production and development is carried on by the Silica Gel Corporation, one-sixth of whose outstanding common stock is held by Davison Chemical. Arrangements are understood to be under way for widespread introduction of Silica Gel.

Studebaker and Others.

J. W.—Please advise me what you think of Studebaker, Texas Corporation and Cerro de Pasco for sound investment purposes at present levels.

Answer—On the basis of the present annual dividend of $5 a share, Studebaker yields to the investor at current prices 11.9 per cent. Cerro de Pasco, which pays $6 yearly, returns 9.8 per cent, and Texas Corporation, with dividends of $3 a year, gives an income yield of 5.7 per cent. Even though Studebaker for the year 1929 reported some falling in earnings from the previous, the stock is still regarded as quite an attractive speculative investment. The same is also true of Texas Corporation and Cerro de Pasco, although they are not to be looked upon as "sound" investments in the ordinary meaning of that term.

Blue Ridge, Foote Bros.

B. V. C.—Kindly furnish me with some information concerning the Blue Ridge Corporation and Foote Bros. Gear & Machine.

Answer—Blue Ridge is an investment trust. No dividends are being paid at present, making the stock speculative. Foote Bros. is the world's largest manufacturer of gears, and the company has been growing steadily since it was organized a quarter of a century ago.

Business in December was the largest ever reported by Foote, an unusually good demand developing for its new lightweight tractor. Earnings last year equaled $2.34 a share on the 240,000 shares of common, as compared with $1.07 a share the year previous. Stockholders voted recently to increase the authorized amount of common to 500,000 shares. Foote may be described as a speculative investment with good possibilities for the long pull.

Cotton goods were slightly firmer and in better demand with sellers reluctant to contract ahead on the current low basis. Raw silk is firmer and silk merchandise is in better request. More business is being placed on wool goods for future delivery. Burlaps were firmer. Strikes in seven Calcutta mills are given as the cause for the rise.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank's weekly report of gold movements at this port showed imports of $1,091,000, consisting of $1,007,000 from Colombia and $84,000 from other Latin American countries, exports of $60,000 to Java, and a net decrease of $13,000,000 in the amount of gold earmarked for foreign account. This report covers the period from March 6 to 12, inclusive. The report for today showed imports of $5,350,000 from Brazil.

SCHOOLS IN FAIRFAX INSPECTED BY BOARD

Improvement Needs Noted by County Officials on All-Day Tour.

EASTERN STAR ELECTS

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Vienna, Va.
Phone Vienna 64.

The Fairfax County School Board made a tour of inspection of the schools in Mount Vernon district yesterday, which occupied the whole day. The members of the board met in Fairfax in the morning and left there for the school at Springfield.

There they were met by a large delegation of members of the Springfield and Franconia School and Community Leagues. The board made an inspection of the building and then went to the school at Franconia and inspected the proposed site of a new school building that the leagues are urging them to build. The schools at Potters Hill and Cameron Run then were visited.

It seemed to be the opinion of most of the members of the board that the schools at Springfield and Franconia, which are about a mile apart, and the school at Cameron Run, 3 miles away, should be consolidated as soon as funds are available and a new building erected at or near Franconia, which is in the center of the territory to be served.

The Snowden school then was visited and the need of a new school there was recognized. At the present time there is a very small playground and this will have to be enlarged or a new site purchased, but before this is done the board decided it would be best to wait until the Mount Vernon Highway was completed so as to view its effect upon the center of population.

The schools at Groveton, Woodlawn, Fort Humphreys and Lebanon were inspected in turn and their needs analyzed. The school at Fort Humphreys is in one of the old barracks on the post, but the teacher is furnished by the county.

The schools inspected were mostly of one or two rooms that are very antiquated, having been built by the old district boards in the "horse and buggy day." The schools at Potters Hill and Groveton are the only ones in the district having any modern facilities.

The Lebanon School was originally a one-room building and was cut into two rooms later. The schools are overcrowded, poorly heated, and with little ventilation. A new building there is one of the most needed, in the opinion of the board.

After the inspection the board visited Gunston Hall, the home of George Mason, the author of the bill of rights which is contained in the Constitution.

The Clifton Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, elected Mrs. Nannie Johnson as worthy matron, at its annual meeting. Other officers elected for the coming year are: Roger Elgin, worthy patron; Mrs. Alice Woodyard, associate matron; E. G. Taylor, associate patron; Mrs. Emma Kidwell, treasurer; Mrs. Grace Mathers, secretary; Mrs. Lula Mantiply, marshal; Mrs. Anthony Hart, chaplain; Mrs. Ruth Pyles, conductress; Morris Davis, sentinel, and Miss Alice Mantiply, warden. The Star points are Miss Elizabeth Buckley as Adah, Mrs. Lillie Buckley as Ruth, Mrs. Maud Taylor as Electa, Mrs. Rena Davis as Esther and Mrs. Pauline Clinton as Martha. The new officers were installed immediately after election by Mrs. Maude West, past worthy matron, assisted by Mrs. Ada Veach, of Lincolnia, past grand marshal of Virginia, and Mrs. Florence Clift of Alexandria.

The members of the Fairfax Golf and Country Club will formally open the spring season of the club, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock with a handicap tournament for men. The match will be played on the temporary greens at the club whose course is located on the Little River pike, about 3 miles west of Fairfax. The tournament will be in charge of John W. Rust, of Fairfax; William S. Aud, of Herndon and R. A. Gabriel, of Chantilly.

The ladies of the club have issued invitations to a tea that will be given in the clubhouse from 2 until 5 o'clock on the same day. Mrs. Victor Cahill, of Washington and Mrs. Daniel Detwiler, of Herndon, will preside at the tables. The reception will be in charge of Mrs. Julian D. Thompson, of Herndon and Mrs. Paul E. Brown, of Fairfax.

George M. Curtis, Vincent J. Beans, Grace Poole and Mrs. J. E. Taylor, who gave their addresses as Washington, D. C., were arrested late Wednesday night in Falls Church by Town Sergeant Walter Mitchell and charged with being drunk and disorderly. They were taken to the Fairfax County Jail where they spent the night. They were released yesterday morning on $25 collateral each, for their appearance before Mayor John F. Bethune of Falls Church.

As a result of a drunken party at New Alexandria, according to the statement made by Sheriff E. P. Kirby, Lee Downs and Grover Williams, of New Alexandria, are being held in the Fairfax Jail on the complaint of Andre Chassire, who claims that the two men caused him to become drunk at the home of Williams last Sunday night and while he was in a drunken stupor took $300 out of his pockets. A hearing was held yesterday in Fairfax before Justice of the Peace A. C. Ritchie, who ordered the men held for further investigation on a charge of robbery. Policemen Louis L. Finks and A. W. Mills made the arrests.

Sheriff Eppa P. Kirby and Deputy Sheriff W. A. Wheeler worked fast yesterday morning when a complaint was filed and the accused arrested and sentenced to four months on the road all within an hour. Henry Muse, colored, living near Hunters Station, swore out a warrant for Benjamin Frye, also colored, who worked for him, charging that Frye stole 40 chickens. Frye was arrested at his home and taken before Justice of the Peace A. C. Ritchie at Fairfax where he made a full confession and was sentenced to four months on the State roads.

The schools of Fairfax County will devote a portion of today in celebrating Arbor and Bird Day in Virginia at the request of Superintendent of Schools Wilbert T. Woodson in accordance with the proclamation of Gov. John Garland Pollard. The governor urges that all public officials, especially school administrators and teachers, devote part of the day to the enhancement of the State natural beauties, by planting ornamental trees and shrubs about the schools and public grounds and along the public highways as well as about the homes. It is also urged that a program stressing the necessity of protecting birds and wild life of the State be given in every classroom.

The colored schools of Fairfax County will observe Julius Rosenwald day this evening at 8 o'clock at the Gum Spring Colored School, and an appropriate program has been arranged in his honor. W. D. Gresham, State supervisor for Negro schools, will address the gathering.

The Acacia Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, at Falls Church, will present a three-act comedy entitled "The Absent Minded Bridegroom" tonight and tomorrow night in the Odd Fellows Hall on Broad street in Falls Church. The members of the cast are Clarence M. Sale, Dr. Macon Ware, Olin Snyder, Banks Rucker, C. P. Scott, Mrs. W. T. Jewell, Miss Ellen Fenwick, Virginia Taylor and Miss Betty Cline.

The executive committee of the Fairfax County Fair Association held a meeting Wednesday evening in the office of Robert Graham, secretary, in Fairfax. Officers present were E. M. Palmer, of Barcroft, president; J. W. Gaines, of Baileys Crossroads, vice president; Robert E. Graham, of Fairfax, secretary, and Lewis B. B. Oliver, of Fairfax, treasurer.

The committee decided not to have such an extensive program as has been held heretofore, but voted to give the president permission to use $2,000 for the purchase of prizes and cups. This is the largest amount that has ever been appropriated for this purpose.

Arrangements were also made for the posting of the prize lists at an early date. The show will be held in the fair grounds at Fairfax on June 6 and 7.

J. H. Beattie and John Preston, of McLean, comprising a committee from the Fairfax Firemen's Association, appeared before the meeting and asked that the first day of the annual county fair be given over to the volunteer companies in the county. The association granted the firemen the privilege of arranging the program for that day, and stated that all firemen in uniform would be admitted free. President Palmer and Treasurer Oliver were appointed a committee to attend a meeting of the firemen's association which will be held in Vienna March 21.

COUNTY HEADS MEET TO FIX ANNUAL LEVY

Prince Georges Chiefs Pare Estimates, Hoping to Keep Rate Down.

SCHOOL BIDS RECEIVED

The Prince Georges County commissioners met yesterday in executive session to consider the annual levy for the county. While there was no public announcement, it is known that the commissioners are anxious to keep the tax rate to its present level if possible and that they will exert every available economy in order to do this.

Among the items to be discussed by the commissioners was the annual budget of the school system, which shows an increase of approximately $24,500 over last year. This is largely attributable to necessary increases in the teaching staff and school additions as well as several new bus lines ordered by the board of education. Just how the commissioners are to pare the estimates is not known as all the increases are considered necessary to the continued growth of the county school system.

The levy will be signed before the end of this month and several meetings of the commissioners will be necessary before the levy is completed.

The Prince Georges County Board of Education and building committees of the schools affected will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Bladensburg School to open bids for five school projects. These include three new buildings and additions to two existing structures.

The buildings for which bids will be received are a new Decatur Heights Junior High School, a new Mount Rainier High School, a new elementary school for Bradbury Heights, an addition to Riverdale School and an addition to Cheverly School. The structures are to be financed with funds realized by the sale of bonds authorized by the last session of the State legislature.

The Prince Georges County commissioners will ask the State Legislature to change the present building code of the county so as to permit better control of signboard erection, it was revealed yesterday at their office in Upper Marlboro.

The commissioners ask that the present statute be changed so that it reads "structure" instead of "building" and that the minimum cost requiring a permit be lowered from $200 to $100.

By this change they will be able to prohibit erection of large signboards on the roads, which they believe a menace to the motorist, as the signs attract his attention from the road to their message and provide the fraction of a second of inattention which too often results in an accident, they say.

The situation is fairly well under control in the metropolitan district where every structure, no matter how small, must have a permit from the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission issued before it can be constructed. In other sections of the county, the State Legislature provides that a building must cost $200 before it became necessary to obtain a permit. This was done so that farmers would not have to bother with permits for small farm structures. By lowering this minimum rate, however, the commissioners feel that they can to a large extent do away with the signboard as only very small signs can be erected for less than $100.

Mount Rainier will inaugurate its garbage collection service April 4, it was announced yesterday by Mayor Beall. One collection a week will be made at the outset, increasing to two collections weekly in warm weather.

DODGE IS SPEAKER AS KIWANIS GUEST

Mount Vernon Head Tells Alexandrians About Fire Protection.

GEN. SLADEN IS HONORED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Col. H. H. Dodge, superintendent of Mount Vernon, was the principal speaker at the Kiwanis luncheon yesterday, giving a detailed description of the protection of the mansion against fire.

He said that when the Mount Vernon estate was first taken over by the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association, February 22, 1860, the only means of protection against fire consisted of four barrels of water and several leather buckets. The next step was the digging of three cisterns and installation of a small pump. During the next 30 years several other improvements were installed, and in 1890 four large chemical pumps were presented to the management.

Improvements were made from time to time until 1924, when a reservoir having a capacity of 250,000 gallons was constructed on an adjoining hillside and a 750-gallon engine, similar to the largest at present in use in Alexandria, was purchased. The rooms of all the buildings, which are of shingles, are also protected by a fireproof covering of sheetrock. A demonstration of the efficiency of the fire protection was given last year in the presence of Fire Chief Watson, of Washington; Chief James M. Duncan, jr., of Alexandria, and a number of other visiting fire chiefs, when three streams of water and four of chemicals were turned on a fire 1 minute and 53 seconds after the sounding of the alarm.

James B. Rouss, chief engineer of Mount Vernon, spoke of the engineering features, including the draining by tunnels of the entire hill upon which the mansion stands in order to prevent landslides, which had occurred during the life of Gen. Washington, and which were said to have been responsible for the relocation of Washington's tomb.

Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commanding officer of the Third Corps Area, of Baltimore, and Capt. James T. Bissell, of the staff of Gen. Sladen, were guests of honor. J. William May was in charge of the program, and introduced guests and speakers, as well as Harry Kirk, president of the George Washington Birthday Association. Robert G. Carter, president of the club, presided.

Officials of Radio Station WJSV, located at Mount Vernon Hills, have just closed a lease, through J. P. Quarles, of Alexandria, for a suite of six rooms on the fourth floor of the Doniphan Building, at King and Columbus streets, which will be used for their executive offices and studio. Minor alterations will be necessary to adapt the quarters to the use of the station, such as the removal of partitions to form a large studio room, but it was announced yesterday that the new quarters will be occupied within the next few days.

The executive offices and studio of the broadcasting station, which is owned and operated by the Independent Publishing Co., have been located at 323 Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, but on account of the fact that other broadcasting stations in Virginia have complained of the station being charged to Virginia's quota, while the studio was located in the District of Columbia, the company deemed it advisable to come to Alexandria.

Application was made first to the George Mason Hotel for quarters, which was taken under consideration by the board of directors of the hotel company, but no decision had been reached. The Doniphan Building was formerly the Fairfax Apartments, and was gutted by fire more than a year ago. It had recently been completely remodeled and practically rebuilt, the upper floors being used mainly as offices.

Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commanding officer of the Third Corps Area, who served as chief marshal of the Washington's Birthday parade here February 22, was tendered an informal dinner party last night at the George Mason Hotel by officers and members of the George Washington's Birthday Association in appreciation of his services in handling the parade.

Charles W. King, who was assistant chief of staff of the parade, was chairman of the committee on arrangements for the dinner, and J. William May, a past president of the association, acted as toastmaster.

Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, a member of the bicentennial commission for the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of Washington in 1932; Norman Call, vice president of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad; Col. Elliott J. Dent, United States Army, retired, and several others made short talks.

Suits for collection of delinquent city taxes, some of which dated back several years, were filed in several cases yesterday by City Attorney Carl Budwesky, who issued a statement in which he said that for several months past he had been sending notices to all delinquent taxpayers, both for real and personal property taxes; that practically all delinquents have received notices and some three, but that the responses had not been as satisfactory as had been expected, and under his instructions from the city council, he is obliged to institute legal proceedings to enforce collections. This action will, he stated, add a considerable amount to the tax bills in the way of costs, which must be paid by the delinquent.

Mr. Budweaky stated that approximately $55,000 of outstanding delinquent taxes are due the city.

Funeral services for Enoch Davis, 55 years old, who died Wednesday at his home, 431 South Lee street, will be conducted at the residence at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon by the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Burial will be in St. Paul's Cemetery.

Mr. Davis is survived by his widow and three children.

The funeral of Mrs. John U. Schwarzmann, who died Monday, was held from St. Mary's Catholic Church yesterday, the Rev. Hugh McFadden, assistant pastor, officiating, and interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

John W. Light Succumbs.

Cumberland, Md., March 18 (Special).—John W. Light died yesterday at his home in Bloomery, Hampshire County, W. Va. Mr. Light, a retired merchant, was in his eighty-sixth year. He is survived by his widow and one son, W. C. Light, 204 Seymour street, this city. The funeral will be held Friday noon with burial in the family cemetery at Bloomery.

Before a capacity audience numbering more than 300 persons the Cherrydale Volunteer Fire Department opened its tenth annual minstrel show last night in the auditorium of the Firemen's Hall. The show will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night.

The cast included Reese O'Neil, Joseph Reynolds, Frank Williams, Argyle Mackey, Lyman King and Wesley MacDonald as end men; Roy Shea, interlocutor, and Robert E. Janson as director.

The chorus was composed of John Winters, William D. Topley, M. Johnson, Edward Leigh, Walter Johnson, Howard Payne, Ernesto Luzi, Howard Havener, Edward Young, Frank Tucker, Vernon Williams, Sidney Snelling, Carvey Shanks, William G. Kidwell, Len Newlon, Elmer Newlon, Edmond Leger, Boynton Hahn and Wilbur Torreyson.

A feature of the program was the fancy dancing and songs by Gladys Marcey, 10, and Herbert Nelson Marcey, 4 years old, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Marcey. Harold M. Brown was the musical director, with Mrs. Herbert Marcey as accompanist. The proceeds will go to the maintenance fund of the fire department.

Following the indorsement by a special committee for Arlington County and Alexandria of the resolution asking Gov. John Garland Pollard to request Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd to first land on Virginia soil on his return to the United States from his historical trip to the South Pole, the secretary of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce has been instructed by the president, Ashton C. Jones, to forward a copy of the resolution to each of the chambers of commerce in the State, requesting that they indorse the movement and let it be known to Gov. Pollard. A separate letter from the local chamber will go to Gov. Pollard.

In addition to this action on the part of the chamber of commerce, the Arlington County Monarch Club and the Arlington Rotary Club, meeting yesterday, took similar action and the secretary of each club was instructed to so advise Gov. Pollard of the favorable action taken and request that he send a radiogram to Admiral Byrd.

The County Board of Supervisors at its meeting tomorrow morning at the courthouse will be requested to indorse the resolution and instruct the clerk to draft a suitable letter to Gov. Pollard.

The Thomas Nelson Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its monthly meeting last night at the home of Mrs. John Palmer with the regent, Mrs. A. J. Webb, presiding.

Teaching Brought To State Farmers

Agricultural Training Is Taken to Those Who Can Not Go to Schools.

Richmond, Va., March 13 (A.P.).—Virginia farmers who did not and can not go to schools of arguiture are having the schools brought to them.

Twenty-eight hundred took vocational training last year, leaving their fabled firesides after dusk to learn new methods of farming. Vocational instructors in the high schools taught them in 150 evening classes held in the communities.

Vocational teaching for adult farmers has experienced a wide increase, it is shown by figures furnished by Walter S. Newman, State supervisor of agricultural education. Six years ago the enrollment was 400, and the average increase has been 400 a year.

The value of this instruction was estimated by the farmers themselves, who answered with a figure of $75,000 for its aid toward producing their crops in 1929. Improved practices increased their earnings by that amount, they said.

The average age of the adult farmer in these classes was 35 to 40 years, Mr. Newman said, but some of them are past 60.

Closing of Mills Linked With Unionization Plan

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., March 13.—Sudden announcement today that the Edna cotton mills in Reidsville, N. C., would close for two weeks starting Monday, on orders by the owners in New York, was viewed here as somewhat significant in view of the recent admission of organizers of the Textile Workers of America that they were interested also in the Reidsville textile situation.

L. V. Andrews, manager of the mill, said he had no information regarding the cause of the shutdown. The labor organizers are admittedly interested in forming unions in Reidsville, Leaksville and Spray, all cotton mill towns, also the furniture factories in Henry County. The Reidsville close-down will throw nearly 300 workers out of employment.

Sale of Tobacco Plant At Danville Reported

The plant, according to the report, will be operated as a stemmery, the American Tobacco Co. being willing to dispose of it under its new policy of centralizing its activities in the nearby Town of Reidsville, N. C.

Truck Crop Value In Virginia Gains

Richmond, Va., March 13 (A.P.).—Truck crop values in Virginia soared to the high figure of $21,487,000 in 1929, $7,000,000 above returns the previous year, it is shown by United States Department of Agriculture compilations announced here by Henry M. Taylor, Federal-State crop reporting statistician.

Virginia was fifth in the United States in truck crop values, being led by California, Florida, New Jersey and New York in order. California's production was worth $76,751,000; Florida, $36,050,000; New Jersey, $27,594,000; New York, $21,855,000. In value per acre the Virginia figure was $173, as compared with $230 for Florida, $196 for California, $178 for New Jersey and $138 for New York.

Most of Virginia's truck output is raised in the Eastern Shore section, although some is produced along the peninsula and in Wythe and Smith Counties. Figures compiled by the Government cover crops for market and canning, but do not include the produce of garden districts near cities and towns.

Virginia Dry Law Declared Invalid

Supreme Court Says That Change of Venue Statute Is Unconstitutional.

Richmond, Va., March 13 (A.P.).—One of Virginia's State prohibition laws became ineffective today with the ruling by the State Supreme Court of Appeals holding unconstitutional the Layman act, which sought to give "dry" officers, charged with offenses against persons or property, the right to a change of venue on their mere affidavit.

The decision was handed down in an opinion which denied to William A. Farmer and V. O. Smith, State prohibition inspectors, a writ of mandamus to compel the Corporation Court of Lynchburg to grant them a change of venue.

The Supreme Court held the law unconstitutional "because it is a special act providing for a change of venue for a limited class of persons when they happen to be charged with crime."
